PARCLAY PEAK, Katie Anderson's murderer, will swing on the first of September.

The Concord School of Philosophy is spending the summer in the study of Aristotle.

THAT "Grand Old Man," Thurman, of Ohio, will not accept "anything from Democracy."

THE chrome-yellow bun poisoners in Philadelphia must go. They should be exterminated from every place.

SOME of our Democratic exchanges speak of the ex-Unionist and ex-Confederates. There are ex-Confederates but there is no such thing as an ex-Unionist. We are now all Unionists, or we are not fit to be citizens of this grand republic.

MR. HERBERT F. BEECHER, of Port Townsend, Wyoming Territory, is the son of the late Henry Ward Beecher. He holds an office under Cleveland. His record is now being investigated, and it looks as if he will not come out in very good condition.

THE sentence visited upon Jacob Sharpe, the New York briber, should afford an impressive lesson. It seems cruel to sentence a man who is apparently so near death's door, but it was necessary, and when the enormity of the offense is considered, the sentence is insufficient. Judge Barret and other judges do right when they impose sentences which have a tendency to break up great evils.

THE Kentucky Republicans claim that there is a reserve vote in that State of 100,000 votes and the majority of it belongs to their party. It has not for some years been voting, and it is hoped to get it to the polls in the August election. If this claim is a good one and this votes materializes in the coming election, the claim of sanguine Republicans that Kentucky is now a doubtful State may be realized. There were some surprises in Kentucky last autumn and there may be still greater ones in store for August next.

THE number of State elections which will be held this year is small. Governors will be chosen in Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts and Ohio. Kentucky votes on August 1, while the elections in the other States named will take place on November 8. Rhode Island elected its Governor on April 6. Minor State officers will be chosen this year in New York and Pennsylvania, the election taking place in each State on November 8. The most important of these elections to the people of the country in general will be the ones held in New York and Ohio. In each of these States the Prohibitionists and Labor party will have nominees in the field, and the latter intend to make a lively canvass. On account of the "moral effect" which it may have on the Presidential struggle in 1888 a large vote will undoubtedly be cast by each party in all the States mentioned this year.

THE Yellowstone National Park is a region full of natural wonders, of which explorers and travelers have told the world something; yet nothing short of a personal visit can serve to aid the mind in a comprehension of its marvels. Before the majesty and beauty of the great Canon of the Yellowstone, flecked with all the colors of a gorgeous sunset; the mysterious loveliness of the springs, which have carved for themselves fountains of the most exquisite form and finish; and above all before the gigantic geysers, huge fountains of hot water which cast their steaming columns hundreds of feet into the air, language is feeble. Words which have seemed to ennoble lesser objects are weak and ineffectual in describing such a vast collection of marvels. A distinguished writer, in speaking of the country embraced in the Park, says: "It is a region of wonder, terror and delight. Nature puts forth all her powers, and her moods are ever changing from grave to gay, from lively to severe."

Judge Agnew Replies to Rev. Dr. Laurie.

MR. EDITOR: Some one has sent me a sermon on the License Laws of Pennsylvania, by the Rev'd Dr. Laurie. As I am the only judge he named as having "wrested" the language of the law in favor of license, I may be permitted to speak for myself. The spirit and in justice which gave birth to this aspersion I shall notice hereafter. I may now say that he has pre-eminently violated the sound rule he professes to admire—a rule of good sense and right feeling—viz., not to wrest language to a purpose foreign to its intent.

He says Judge Agnew holds that "The law of the land has determined that licenses shall exist." He then imputes to me the position that "licenses shall be granted." My italics show the difference of meaning. This change of expression is hurtful and untrue.

I do affirm that the existence of licenses comes by the law. That they shall be granted I deny. The law creates the system, the court grants or refuses the license, according to the facts before it. My meaning is plain, and will be more obvious when I cite hereafter the whole sentence from which the Doctor has torn his text. It is easily proved by an example. A man is indicted for selling liquor. He pleads and produces a license. He is acquitted. Why? Because the law authorized his license. It therefore exists by law. If it had no legal existence, the Court had no power to grant it, and it could be no defense.

Again, the Doctor has done another wrong. He misquotes me, and then imputes to me a position I do not take. He says—"Among the judges, according to Judge Agnew, three opinions obtain. First, that it is obligatory on the Court to grant licenses to all who comply with the provisions of the law; second, that it is obligatory on the Court to grant licenses to some of those who comply with the provisions of the law, but not to all; and third, even if the provisions of the law are complied with, the Court is not bound to grant any license whatever. Judge Agnew agrees with the second class." My italics show the misstatement.

That this is an utter perversion of my meaning is shown by my language in the context, which I now quote:

"No subject has been productive of more difference of opinion and practice than this, in the different judicial districts of the State; some judges holding it to be obligatory on the Court to grant every license, when the applicant has brought himself within the provisions of the law as to the terms of his application; and others holding that they are not bound to grant any license whatever. Clearly, neither opinion is right." (Then I give the reason), "the discretion which the Court exercises being a sound discretion upon the circumstances of each case as it is presented to the court; and not a general opinion upon the propriety or impropriety of granting licenses."

Thus, I was not enumerating all the different opinions existing, but stating the extremes growing out of the general question as to the propriety or impropriety of licenses. This is proved by what follows, viz.: "Whether any or all licenses should be granted is a legislative, not a judicial question. Courts sit to administer the law fairly and not to make or to repeal it."

Now comes the sentence from which the Doctor has disrupted his text, viz., "The law of the land has determined that licenses shall exist, and has imposed upon the Court the duty of ascertaining the proper instances in which the license shall be granted, and therefore has given it to decide upon each case, as it arises in the course of law. The act of deciding is judicial, and not arbitrary or willful."

It is clear I thus referred to the license system, as a thing instituted by law, and then to the province of the Court as acting under it. I did not say there were three different opinions or how many; I did not agree with the "second." I did not say the judges shall grant; for whether any should be granted, then depended on the acts of 1859 and 1867. Yet the Rev'd Doctor imputes to me the position that they shall grant, even to the extent of "wresting" words out of their natural meaning. (See pages 24 and 25) The whole paragraph beginning on page 24 and ending on page 25 is a shameful perversion of my meaning.

I do assert that licenses exist by the law, for they could not be granted without its authority. But I do not assert the courts shall grant them, yet the Doctor charges I do, in the face of my citation in my opinion of the act of 1859 defining the discretion of the Court, and my quotation from the act of 1867, authorizing the courts "In all cases to refuse the same, wherever in the opinion of the said Court, having due regard to the number and character of the petitioners for, and against such license (to wit, to sell liquors) it is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and entertainment of strangers and travelers."

Neither of these laws abrogated the license system; but they very materially enlarged the discretion of the court to refuse licenses. The act of 1867 put it in the power of the people, by remonstrances, to prevent all licenses being granted in their particular locality.

Another fact is that the Doctor does not seem to know that the acts of 1856 and its supplement 1857, which he admits were mandatory, constituted the general license system of the State until 1867, and that subsequent laws are only modifications and changes of particular features.

In his sermon, the learned Doctor cites the Schlaudecker case to show that the Supreme court holds that licenses are not mandatory, and yet that opinion was written by me and contains the very paragraph he perverts. The opinion sustained the refusal of Schlaudecker's license as proper.

What makes these perversions more flagrant, is that the Doctor knows my views are contrary to license. For years I was President of the Constitutional Amendment Association and labored, over the state in its service. He was present also (I believe) at my address, before the Woman's Temperance Union in Bellefonte, more than a year ago, an address which combatted all licenses high or low, and which the Union has thought worthy of publication. If the only apology the Doctor has for this injustice to me, and injury to the cause of temperance, is ignorance I can only add—Ne sutor ultra crepidam.

DANIEL AGNEW.

(Dr. William Laurie desires us to state that he will reply to Judge Agnew in the next issue.—Ed.)

Judge Agnew's Opinion.

It having been questioned as to whether Judge Agnew ever explained his opinion on the famous Schlaudecker case, he sends us the following printed in the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette several months ago:

BEAVER, March 25, 1887.

GENTLEMEN—I have received your communication stating the desire of citizens of Beaver Falls expressed at a public meeting on the 22d inst., to have my views upon the case of Schlaudecker vs. Marshall et al., decided by the Supreme Court, and also as to the purpose and effect of the act of 22d March 1867.

"The case of Schlaudecker vs. Marshall is good law for what it decides; but it has been applied erroneously to the act of 1867."

The point decided was simply whether the License Board had violated a sound discretion in refusing an eating-house license to Schlaudecker. The case was this:—A License Board, headed by James Marshall, Esq., under a special law, decided that Schlaudecker was not entitled to an eating-house license. He applied to the Court of Common Pleas for a mandamus against the board, ordering them to grant him a license, on the ground that he was entitled to it under his petition. The board filed an answer setting forth that they had before them thirty-one applications for tavern license, eight wholesale liquor and ninety-five eating-house licenses, of which they granted twenty-five tavern, six wholesale liquor and thirty-nine eating-house licenses. They set out also the matters inquired into, viz.:—the place to be licensed, the character of the petitioner, and his accommodations; and further that their duty compelled them to see if the public interest required (where there were 134 applications to deal out spirituous liquors) to grant that number in a city (Erie) of a population of about 20,000. They claimed that they were not bound to take the certificate of the twelve citizens as conclusive of the necessity of the house, but to examine into the matter upon the evidence or by personal inspection, and on a full and careful examination to decide who (among the ninety-five applicants) should have license, and who should not. This answer raised the only question whether the board had exercised a reasonable discretion in refusing the license.

It will be observed, the answer raised no question under the act of 1867 upon the force or effect of remonstrances. Acting, as the board did, on the state of the case before them, the Court held that Schlaudecker was not entitled to a mandamus, and the Supreme Court having jurisdiction in mandamus cases, affirmed the judgment of the Court below.

In the Supreme Court it was thus a question of sound discretion on part of the License Board on the facts stated. This led to a discussion of what is a sound discretion, and it was decided that the refusal of the license was a proper exercise of it. But in no part of the opinion was any question made or determined upon the effect of petitions and remonstrance under the first section of the act of 1867. This first section was quoted, and so far would, if any effect was given, tend to confirm the power to refuse a license.

The case is, therefore, no justification for holding that it determines the province of remonstrances in applications for the sale of liquors.

On the other hand, it is equally clear the act of 1867 has not changed the purpose of the license. It still refers to the hotel or house, and the inquiry into its necessity for public accommodation and the qualifications of the applicant, remains the same as before. But the first section gives a new effect to the ground of decision, and emphasizes the duty of the Court in reference to the sale of intoxicating drinks.

It expressly refers to the application as "for license to sell intoxicating drinks," authorizes the hearing of petitions in favor of and remonstrating against "such license" and then defines the duty of the Court in "these words," "and in all cases refuse the same, whenever in the opinion of said Court, having due regard to the number and character of the petitioners for and against such applications such license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and entertainment of strangers and travelers." My emphasized words indicate the true interpretation.

Thus a new and material effect is given to public opinion as evidenced by the petitions and remonstrances. Before, the granting of the license depended on the necessity of the house as a hotel or eating-house merely. Now the first section (which says nothing of evidence as in former laws) casts a duty on the Court (in addition) to weigh public opinion, as seen in the petitions and remonstrances, upon the necessity of the hotel or house as a place for the sale of "intoxicating drinks," and justifies the Court in refusing the license on this ground.

Thus while the act of 1867 does not alter the license system as to hotels and eating-houses as places for the public accommodation, it does most materially change the rule of determination by giving a new weight to public opinion as to its necessity as a place for the sale of "intoxicating drinks." Rising with the advancing public sentiment, it requires the Court to give heed to the voice of the people of the locality upon the need for selling liquors.

Schlaudecker's case has no bearing on this point (unless it be to affirm it by reciting the section.) Having written the opinion, I might perhaps rest on my own statement. But I have preferred to give the facts and precise question decided, as they show that the force and effect of remonstrances under the first section of the act of 1867 were not passed upon or determined.

The opinion was the opinion of the Court, and no matter by whom written, it is not correct to stand behind it to diminish the effect of the act of 1867. The Supreme Court in Reed's case, from Washington, adds still greater force to the public opinion, by stating that it is to be gathered from the signatures of woman, as well as of men.

Respectfully, &c., DANIEL AGNEW.

To T. H. Bracken, President. John A. B. Patterson, Secretary.

DURING the past ten years there have been about 8,500 persons wounded, and 3,000 persons killed in the business of mining for anthracite coal in the State of Pennsylvania. The accidents for the year 1886, the last reported, foot up a total of 279 killed and 848 wounded. In the year 1885 there were 312 persons killed and 1,285 wounded. If to the list of killed, was added the unknown number of those who die from the effects of injuries received, the actual loss of life would appear one-fifth greater than it has been reported.

THE Bastille was a prison in Paris which was demolished in 1789. The Parisians celebrated the event on Thursday, the 14th, without any unusual excitement or trouble.

The Great "I."

There is only one subject that President Cleveland can talk about. He talks about it all the time now. He has perhaps made more speeches the past month than he ever made before in all his life, and in them all he talks about himself.

He usually has some complaint to make. At one time it is the newspaper reporters of whom he complains, Next it will be popular sentiment. He always manages to find something to displease him.

He is the only man that ever occupied that position who was incapable of expressing intelligent thought on more than one subject. At a College dinner some time ago he complained and we notice that his addresses in New York late last reflect on the people for, in some way, treating him unkindly.

It is a bad policy for the President always to keep on the defensive. It is useless for him to attempt to explain, and he is unfortunate in such attempts, for almost invariably the result is to place himself in a worse situation than he was before such attempt was made. If he was a well-informed, self-composed man he would not heed disparaging remarks, but would go on doing his duty as it should be done.

When Mr. Blaine made speeches, each succeeding one was on a new subject and not one about himself; how different those which Cleveland is delivering!

It is becoming evident from the amount of foreign goods being imported into this country from Europe that instead of a reduction of the tariff we need an increase in many articles that we are able and do now manufacture in this country. We hold that every article of merchandise that we can manufacture in the United States should be manufactured here to the fullest capacity of the country to consume, and that efforts should be made to dispose of our products to neighboring countries. To do this is only possible by imposing a duty on foreign goods so as to prevent them from coming in to competition with our home manufacturers. The cheaper labor of European countries makes this a necessity for this country and a tariff is required to make up for the difference in wages. American workmen don't want to live like the laboring classes of Europe, and it is perfectly right that they should not. We want to elevate and dignify labor, not debase and enslave it. Protection has made it possible for our laboring classes, by sobriety and care, to own their own homes and more working men do live in their own homes in the United States than any other nation under the sun. That more do not is not the fault of the tariff. A retrograde step to free trade by even a gradual reduction of tariff duties, means of necessity, greater importation of foreign goods and less work in this country. This means less work for laboring men, less wages for those who work and consequently a degradation of labor, suffering and poverty. The thing is plain to him who wants to see.

A Marquis, whose title is questioned, grossly insulted a genuine Russian Prince, whose title is not questioned. Two considerations prevented the Russian prince from resenting the insult. He is too dignified to fight with a gentleman whose position is extremely uncertain, and as Mrs. Leslie requested him not to fight he consented and thus prevented further publicity. The reason for the insult is because the Marquis is jealous of the Prince's attention to Mrs. Leslie, and the probable reason why the Prince declines to resent the insult is because the Marquis, though likely a fraud so far as his title is concerned, is said to be a first-class marksman and in a duel the chances would be in his favor.

THE OLD CANTEN.

BY HORACE RAYON WALKER.

I tell you, Jim, it ain't no use,
A soldier can't forget,
Those bloody scenes are just as fresh
As on the day we met;
But all the relics of the war,
The broken sword, I won,
E'en knapsack, old, there is none like
The dear old tin canteen.

You recollect as well as I,
The hunger and the thirst,
The mad career of horse and man,
Where rebel shells had burst;
But, after all, you gray old vet,
The best remembered scene
Was when we stole a chance to drink
From out the old canteen.

I know as well as any man,
That wore the blue and gray,
That war is hardship, e'en at best,
The victory crowned the day;
But yet, dear Jim, you gray old cat,
You know the iron of the scene
Was when you drank the last drop,
From out the old canteen.

We were in Libby, you, dear Jim,
We were among the first,
And Marathon, Thermopylae,
The bloody war of gray and blue,
Knew not the bloody woe of rebel pens,
The guard of haughty men,
But even then did we forget
To love the old canteen?

Oh, yes, I know the bit of rice,
The hoe-lake and the corn,
Like ariant vandas seemed to us
From dear old Plett's barn;
But still, you one-legged, gray-haired Jim,
No memory is so green,
As when we risked our life to kiss
The lips of that canteen.

But in the dust together lie
The boys in blue and gray,
The war is but a memory gone
Of that eventful day;
But as we wonder 'mid their graves
Where willows softly lean,
We dimly see, thro' veiling tears,
That holy, old canteen.

And while we bow above the graves,
That death, dear Jim, made one,
We must forget there ever was
A battle fought and won;
But if we cherish in our hearts
Some dear and holy scene,
Don't let the hallowed memory go
Of the old tin canteen.

Claremont, N. H.

THE OLD-FASHIONED FOURTH.

Oh, I hear that there's talking all over the town
Of an old-fashioned Fourth of July.
Such a thing might draw even our forefathers
Down from their mansions of rest in the sky.

So much modern science has taken the place
Of the simple old ways and the simple old grace,
That it's good to see signs of a slight change of base.

And an old-fashioned Fourth of July!
Oh, theatre bells and church bells all rang out like mad.

On an old-fashioned Fourth of July,
And statesmen spoke speeches—sometimes pretty bad.

And down South the old "aunties" sold pie;
And the volunteers—well, they were then called militia.

Paraded all day and drank till they were fazy,
And the bands played old tunes—just these wacky-whishy.

On the old-fashioned Fourth of July,
And well-loaded snail went off with a bang
As the fireworks went off with a bang.

And when evening came on, why, the little skyrocket
Fizzed straight up in search of a heavenly socket,
And the fire-cracker rattled and cracked with a shock it.

Played bob with the Fourth of July.
Oh, the old-fashioned Fourth of July,
Can't be had without having it high.

When the fireworks blaze you may talk of old days,
But a rocketless Fourth is a lie!

HOW SHE CRUSHED HIM.

They quarrelled, as lovers sometimes will—
Yowed they'd be true to each other;
And never sigh: "It might have been!"
He called one day; she met him at the door.
He said, as he took his hat: "My dear, I'm Miss Brown, is it not?" "Is your father in?"
She eyed him with a crushing grin,
And said in tones his soul appalled:
"He is not; who shall I tell him?"

Our Story Teller

A STOLEN RIDE.

"I've talked to you until I'm tired, Cornelia Ann!" said Mrs. Boxwood.
Cornelia Ann thought that might very possibly be. Mrs. Boxwood had frequently talked to her, until she—Cornelia Ann, as well as the old lady—was tired also. And she knew likewise that when Mrs. Boxwood called her "Cornelia Ann," instead of "Conny," she was very angry indeed.

"I didn't mean any harm, aunty," murmured Cornelia Ann, hanging down her head.

"Mean!" echoed Mrs. Boxwood.
"And you girls dressing up a pumpkin-headed ghost to frighten Deacon Hubbard, at the end of the lane, and filling old Mrs. Higgins' bonnet with burdock burrs, and putting an old almanac inside Elder Hopgood's sermon cover, so that when he opened it to begin preaching he was clean flambegasted out of his senses—"

"Well, but aunty," argued the culprit, "he said that Lulu and I were lost wretches and would certainly be cast into perdition. He hadn't any business to say that! And Mrs. Higgins told you that Lulu and I helped the boys to lock out the schoolma'am, and it wasn't true. We hadn't a thing to do with it. It's bad enough to be blamed for the mischief that we do, without any additional accusation,"
she added with a pout. "And I hope
—yes, I do hope that she had an awful time getting the burrs out of her old tow-colored wig! As for Deacon Hubbard, we all know that he says that there isn't any such thing as ghosts;
so why need he be afraid of a pumpkin
on the end of a pole, with a white sheet wrapped around it? And I'm afraid, aunty," she added, with a roguish sparkle in her eyes, "that he's coming here to carry you off! And, for all you scoold at us so much, Lulu and I don't want to lose you!"

"La, child," said Mrs. Boxwood, highly flattered, "I never thought of such a thing! I ain't going to change my widowed condition at my time o' life, not for all the deacons going. But I am surprised, Conny—"
At this stage of affairs, however, Mr.

Boxwood was called away, and Conny
made her rejoicing escape.

Conny was no brand from the burning, no double-dyed assassin, but simply a wild romp, overflowing with health and spirits, who never paused to consider whether or no she was going too far in her mad escapades.

Some of the neighbors called her handsome.

"She has cheeks like an apple-blossom," said Mrs. Phillips "and I never did see such eyes! They are the loveliest blue, and they sparkle like diamonds when she gets to talking."

And others pronounced her as plain as a pike-staff, so that Conny really did not quite know what to think about herself.

"Squire Dana, an old friend of her father, laughed himself red in the face
when he heard of her wild frolics.

"Let her alone," said he—"let her alone. She'll come out all right. It's the most valuable fillicies that gallop the hardest in pasture when they're young."

And Elder Hopgood declared, with a melancholy groan, that Cornelia Ann Boxwood was certainly on the high road to destruction if ever a girl was.

On this particular day Conny went out with a sigh of relief.

The level, crimson sun seemed to rest a moment on the top of the western woods before disappearing.

"It's very hard to be scolded all the time," said she to herself. "I will have a little walk to rest myself from Aunt Boxwood's household cares and labors and the stocking darning must wait until to-morrow."

So Conny ran through the fragrant woods, listening to the merry ripple of the brook, and whistling back with shrill sweetness to the good-night chirps of robin, thrush and red-winged blackbird in the tree-tops, until she came to a solitary farm-house on the edge of the lake.

It was past sunset now. The young moon, faintly mirrored in the lake, gleamed like a thread of silver. Close beside streamed the red reflection of the farm house windows across the placid water.

"There's the doctor's carriage at the door," said Conny. "It's old Mr.
Falkner's rheumatism again. Poor
Doctor Darling! what he has to endure with Mr. Falkner's rheumatism! But it serves him right, for asking Fanny Parker to go to the picnic instead of our Lulu; and for scolding me for giving Aunt Boxwood a bread and butter poultice, instead of caprine plaster for her chest. I know what I'll do—I'll take a comfortable little drive around the lake in his carriage, and see how he'll enjoy walking home! Of course, he'll think it's stolen, and be half frightened out of his wits—and serve him right, too!"

The thought in Conny's mind was father to the deed.

Quickly and lightly she untied the horse, jumped into the carriage, and chirruped to old Dick, who set off at a dog trot.

The flowers which she had gathered
she flung into the bottom of the carriage; her light, striped shawl fluttered behind and in the faint moonlight her eyes shone like mischievous stars.

It was a lonely road—a fragrant silent highway—winding itself through the woods; but Conny feared nothing, as she drove rapidly along, singing snatches of wild ballads to herself, until suddenly a tall, dark figure stepped forth into the road and took the horse
by the head, with an authoritative.

"Halt, there!"

Conny uttered a shriek, and dropped the reins. The stranger sprang into the carriage and seated himself beside her.

"What does all this mean?" said he,
in a deep voice. "What right have you with my carriage?"

"Doctor Darling!" she gasped.

"Yes, Doctor Darling!" said he,
sternly.

"I—I thought you were in at Mr.
Falkner's," faltered Conny. "I wanted a drive—and—"

"And you shall have one," said the doctor, composedly. "I walked across to see Mrs. Hadley at the Four Corners, and I returned, as it seems, just in time to save my horse and carriage!"

Conny did not say a word. She could not think of any excuse to make.

"Where are you going?" she ventured to ask, in a whisper.

"To Judge Whelpley's. To have you committed for trial!"

"I!" gasped Conny.

"For horse-stealing," succinctly added Doctor Darling.

Conny uttered a shriek.

"What will they do to me?" she stammered, holding desperately on to the side of the carriage.

"I don't quite know whether it is a hundred dollars fine or six months in the penitentiary," Doctor Darling gravely answered.

Conny began to cry.

"But I was only in fun!" she sobbed.

"I never meant—how should I?—to steal the horse!"

"It has an awkward look, nevertheless, Miss Boxwood. But of course if you can make Judge Whelpley believe all this—"

Poor Conny was thoroughly subdued at last. With piteous abjectness she sued for pardon.

"Please—please, Doctor Darling," she urged, "forgive me! I never could pay a hundred dollars; and as for six months in the penitentiary, I'd rather take poison!"

Just at this moment they drove out of the dense woods into the broad road, faintly lighted by the deepening silver of the young moon; and Conny, timidly glancing up into her companion's face, saw an amused expression around the corners of his mouth.

"But you don't really mean it?" said she.

"How do you know that I don't mean it?" demanded Doctor Darling.
"I do mean it! I mean that you are my captive. And that you can only ransom yourself in one way, else the penitentiary and the fine shall be enforced to their uttermost severity."

"In what way?" asked bewildered Conny.

"Oh, Doctor Darling, I'll promise anything!"

He let the reins fall limp over the dashboard. Old Dick walked slowly along at his own rate of speed, while Doctor Darling turned around to look his companion full in the face.

"Dear little Conny, by trifling with me no further! By owning yourself to be mine, heart and soul! By giving yourself to me!"

"But, Doctor Darling, you never could care for a silly girl like me!"
faltered Conny, scarcely able to believe her own senses, yet conscious of some sudden, vague brightness irradiating
all her soul.

"Could I not, my pearl among maid-ens? But I can and I do!" said he.

And then there Conny and Doctor Darling became engaged.

"Then," said Conny, as they drew up before Aunt Boxwood's door, "you really didn't mean it about Judge Whelpley and the penitentiary?"

"Did you think I was actually in earnest?" he laughed

Conny was silent. She had played so many wild, practical jokes upon people that this really seemed to her only a righteous retribution. But she made Doctor Darling promise her that he would not mention the horse-stealing episode before Mrs. Boxwood.

"For," said Conny, "she would be sure to say, 'Cornelia Ann, I am astonished at you.'"

A Mule's Superior Intelligence.

Last year during the heavy rains,
when every stream was swollen to its utmost, says a letter in the Augusta (Ga.) Gazette, the writer had occasion to visit one of the swamp plantations lying some miles below Augusta on the Savannah river. Upon this hangs our story. Arriving at a gentleman's place whom we know, we told him we were sorry that the high water would keep us from inspecting his fine swamp timber, having gone there for that purpose. To our surprise, he told us that this need not interfere in the least, and that he had an old gray mule that knew the swamps better than he or any one else, and that we could ride her, and if trouble came, whether we got lost or waterbound, we must give her the reins and she would bring us home safe;

that she could walk a log as well as a dog; that he had on several occasions
when these freshets came (the cattle being in the swamps and in great danger of being drowned) sent the mule after them, saying, "Jane, go bring the cows home." The mule, seeming to understand, would at once start for the swamp. The mule has been known to cross a log when it could not be seen,
being two or three feet below the surface. Having done so she would proceed to herd and collect all the cows.

After that she would emit a loud bray and start for the house. The cattle would follow in single file across this log to their master's house.

Three persons in New York are to be hanged for murder within a few days.
Others have been convicted of the crime
who are waiting the law's further action.
One man was hanged only a few days ago. Yet in the face of these awful warnings there were five attempts at murder Tuesday, and chance alone was all that prevented all five from resulting as the murderous intent of one man did.

Master Tommy is out walking with his mother. Seeing a colored man, he exclaims:

"Oh! wouldn't I like to be as black as that!"

"What an idea!"

"Yes, because then I should have to bother about washing my face."

"Say, didn't you tell me when you saw me that dog that he was a bird dog?" "Yes, that is what I said." "Well you swindled me. That dog won't hunt." "I didn't say he would hunt.
He's a bird dog. Cook the birds for him. That's the way he likes them best."

A Curious Floating Island.

Cor. San Francisco Examiner.

Henry's Lake is one of the wonders of the Rocky Mountains. Directly on the summit of the continental divide,
in a depression or gap called Targee's pass, is a body of water that was given the above name in honor of an old trapper who made his home on its borders for several years in the enjoyment of sweet solitude.

Henry's Lake is in oval shape and has an area of forty square miles. It is entirely surrounded by what seems to be solid land, and one readily concludes that it has no outlet. On the west side lies a level meadow, which floats on the water, and the hidden outlet is beyond it. Near the rim of the basin, which at no distant day must have been the pebbly beach of the lake, is a shallow pool, out from which flows
a creek—the source of the north fork of Snake river.

A species of blue joint grass of luxuriant growth floats upon the water and sends out a mass of large hollow
white roots, which form a mat so thick and firm that a horse can walk with safety over the natural pontoon. The decayed vegetation adds to the thickness of the mat and forms a mold in which weeds, willows and small trees take root and grow. Back from the new border the new land is firm and supports pine and aspen trees of small growth.

An island of the same turf formation floats about the lake. The floating body of land is circular and measures 300 feet in diameter. A willow thicket thrives in the center, inter-persed with small aspens and dwarf pines. The little trees catch the breeze and are the sails that carry the island on its orbit. One evening it was within a stone's throw of our camp. At daylight next morning it was five miles away.

A Typical Tramp.

A rather odd looking character was seen loitering in the vicinity of the Union Depot, Pittsburg. He wore the marks of a typical tramp. His shabby clothes, well worn shoes and dilapidated straw hat, hanging carelessly over his left ear, made him such. The peculiarity about his general make-up was the short sleeves of his coat. They had been cut off at the elbows. It is nothing unusual to see a tramp with ragged coat sleeves cut off evenly excite the curiosity of the bystanders.

One young fellow, who seemed to be more curious than the rest of the crowd,
asked the seedy looking individual why
both of his coat sleeves were cut off.
The tramp smiled and said:

"I'll tell you all about it, young fellow. You see I bought this coat a few weeks ago from a misfit establishment on Baxter street, New York City. There is a firm on that thoroughfare who deal entirely in second hand garments.
They don't sell them by the piece—
they sell them by weight. This coat was valued at twelve cents, but I only had a dime."

"Well, didn't they have a ten cent coat?" ventured the young man.

"No, not one that would fit me. I was about leaving the store, when the old fellow who runs the establishment came in and said: 'Nefer mind, mine frent, I'll fix it for you.' He had no sooner uttered the last words than he cut off one sleeve and tossed the coat on the scales. Still it was too heavy, and he whacked off the other and threw the garment on the scales again. It was the correct weight this time. That is how I happen to be wearing a sleeveless coat. Can't you give me a lift?"

He Stayed Too Late.

Fairfield (Me.) Journal.

There is a girl on Water street, Showhagan, who has a fellow who comes from such a great distance that he drives, and when he comes to spend an evening he puts up his faithful steed and stops a while, you know. Last Monday morning some of the neighbors who happened to be stirring just at the break of day or a little before, saw the young man issuing from the stable with a team. A horse thief suggested itself to the female who made the discovery, and she rushed to her father's apartment to inform him of the great danger being done to a neighbor's property. Aroused from a sound sleep, the good man made for a convenient window, and, putting more than half of himself through it, loudly called: "Mr. T—, there is a thief in the stable getting your team." After he had sent this information across the street several times the much-courted maiden appeared at the door and informed the aroused sleeper that his loud statements lacked truth. Down went the window and the scene closed.

Frightened at a Ball of Fire.

A special despatch from Detroit,
Michigan, says: A curious and frightful phenomena occurred yesterday afternoon during a rain storm. It was in the shape of an intensely brilliant ball of electric fire, and greatly terrified the family of Captain J. T. Patten, of No.
28 Hancock avenue west. Hearing a strange noise, Miss Patten entered the darkened sitting room just in time to see a blazing ball of fire, which she subsequently described as larger than a cocoanut, burst through the wall paper from the chimney. Mrs. Patten saw it at about the same time. The ball floated slowly around the room with buoyancy of a toy balloon, emitting a hissing sound and throwing an intense glare on the surroundings. Clouds of soot burst out from the chimney with it and floated in the blinding glare.

The ladies, full of terror, placed their hands over their eyes and turned from the sight. Just then Mrs. Frank Fri-bee, who lives across the street, ran over for a short call. She opened the door and a draft was created, and the blazing visitor darted out. Mrs. Fri-bee, almost paralyzed with fear, dodged
just in time, and the ball, with a loud biss, swooped out the door and disappeared. One side of Mrs. Fribee's face was blackened by the soot or discolored by the ball as it passed her.

The Beautiful Snow Plant.

Trucks (Cal.) Republican.

One of the most interesting products of
of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and one which never fails to excite the wonder and admiration of the tourist, whether from the East or the large cities of the coast, is the beautiful snow plant. The scientific name of this flower is the carcades sanguinea, meaning blooded flesh.
June is the month of its blossoming, and it can now be seen growing in secluded spots in the mountains where the snow falls deepest in winter and where the tall grass grows quickly and casts an unbroken shade. The plant itself is from four to ten inches in height and is of a bright scarlet color, including leaves and flowers, although the stem is pink and white. The flowers are attached close to the stem, and the leaves curl upward and partially hide the flowers from view, the whole being in the form of cone. The leaves have a delicate frost-like edge, which makes them extremely beautiful. Every visitor to this vicinity always manages to secure one of these curiosities to show to his friends below these plants grow is not known to botanists, as they neither seed nor bulb.

They are supposed to be parasitic and cannot be propagated. Localities where they are abundant one year may not produce a single specimen the next.

Current Jokes of the Day.

Boy—Teacher, I wish you would make that girl quit winking at me.

Teacher—Why don't you look somewhere else?

Boy—Because if I do she'll wink at some other boy.

Young man (to messenger boy)—What did the young lady say when you gave her the flowers?

Messenger Boy—She asked the young fellow who was sitting on the porch with her if he didn't want some for a buttonhole bouquet.

"Let me have a couple of gallons of good whiskey."

"Why, we don't keep any whiskey in stock."

"What do you mean, then, by advertising that you have a complete line of fishing-tackle?"

"I am afraid, madam, said a gentleman who was looking for country board, "that the house is too near the station to be pleasant."

"It's a little noisy," assented the landlady, "but from the front veranda one has such a fine view of people who miss the trains."

"Why are you so cold and distant tonight, dear," he asked. "Have I offended you in any way?"

"All is over between us, George," replied the girl firmly. "I cannot trust my future to a man who possesses such wretched judgment. I saw you umpire
a game of base ball to-day."

"Theodore, I don't believe you love me any more," said a K street girl, plati-nively, as her best fellow, a P. O. Department clerk, pulled her hastily past an ice cream saloon.

"O, don't say that, dearest," said he postofficially. "Why I named fourteen Postoffices after you last week!"

"Young man," said a stern parent, with the accent on the young, "do you intend to stay here all night, holding my daughter's hand, and looking into her eyes like a sick calf?"

"No, sir."

"What do you intend to do, then?"

"Well, I had thought that when you did us the kindness to retire, I would put my arm around her waist, and if she did not object too forcibly, I might risk
a kiss."

The Cost of Solomon's Temple.

According to the computation of Vilalpandus, the talents of gold, silver and brass used in the construction of the temple amounted to $6,879,822,500. The jewels are reckoned to have exceeded this sum; but, for the sake of an estimate, let their value be set down at the same amount. The vessels of gold consecrated to the use of the temple are reckoned by Josephus at 1,400,000 talents, which, according to Capel's reduction, are equal to $575,296,201. The vessels of silver are computed at 1,340, 000 talents, or $489,344,000. The silk

vestments of the priests cost $10,000;
the purple vestments of the singers,
$2,990,000,000. The trumpets amounted to $200,000; other musical instruments, to $40,000. To these expenses must be added those of the other materials, the timbers and stone, and of the labor employed upon them, the labor being divided thus: there were 10, 000 men at Lebanon hewing timber;
60,000 bearers of burdens; 30,000 hew-ers of stone; and 3,800 overseers; all of whom were employed for seven years, and upon whom, besides their wages and diet, Solomon bestowed $6, 733,977. If the daily feed and wages of each man be estimated at 4s. and 6d., the total sum will be $63,877,088. The costly stone and the timber in the rough may be set down at least to equal one-third of the gold, or about $2,545,396,000. The several estimates will then amount to $19,442,442,168, or $77,621,995,636.

The President's Trip.

FOREST PORT, N. Y., July 15.—Notwithstanding that the sun arose gloriously over the hills this morning, there were no signs of life at the Dominion Cleveland, where the presidential party is stopping, until nearly nine o'clock. The president did not rise to breakfast with the remainder of the family but remained in bed till noon. He is suffering from fatigue and a slight attack of cholera morbus. Dr. A. G. Brower called during the morning and gave him a little medicine. Railroad Commissioner Kernan also made the president a brief call.

Mrs. Cleveland's eye pains her still and altogether the party is sadly in need of the rest they are now enjoying. The president has decided not to alter the arrangements made for the excursion to-morrow. During last evening Mrs. Cleveland played a number of selections on the piano and sang one of her favorite songs. The music, however, seemed to attract the villagers, and as soon as the fact was discovered she ceased. The curtains were not drawn, and the party could be seen chatting together in a most sociable way. Mrs. Cleveland, although still wearing a bandage over her suffering eye, seemed to enter into the conversation with energy. The bouquets presented to her at Clinton were displayed about the parlors to good advantage.

An agent of one of the hotels on the St. Lawrence river arrived here this morning for the purpose of endeavoring to induce the President to hold an informal reception at the hotel designated by him during the afternoon to-morrow. The citizens of Watertown, too, are very desirous of entertaining the party for a short time to-morrow morning. The special train conveying the party will reach there at 10:35 a. m., and will be met by General Manager Britton of the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad, accompanied by a number of Mrs. Cleveland's Oswego friends. The train scheduled to reach Cape Vincent at 10 o'clock and the party will embark at once on the steamer St. Lawrence for a day's ride among the islands. The President's arrangements provide for a dinner on the boat.

The President went to his room again in the afternoon and remained there until nearly 7 o'clock, when he began to prepare for the reception. It was a great night for the hamlet of Forestport. The people drove in from all sections and in all kinds of conveyances. Mrs. Cleveland returned from Commissioner Kernan's at an early hour and at 7:30 the reception began. Bands gave an open air concert on the hill just beside the parsonage. The guests were presented to the President and his wife by Mrs. William N. Cleveland and Commissioner Kernan.

During the evening over 700 persons were shaken by the hand by both the President and his wife. Little children and aged men were alike hospitably received. During the day the President received the lithographed invitation of Root post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Syracuse, to visit that city but will probably be obliged to decline. Telegrams also poured in during the evening requesting that brief stops be made by the excursion to-morrow at different towns along the route from this village to Cape Vincent. No definite replies were made.

Humorous.

A striking performance—a boxing match.

The man who believes talk is cheap never employed a lawyer.

He—What are you thinking of? She—Nothing. He (absent-mindedly)—You flatter me.

"What kind of pudding is this, waiter?" "Tapio, sir." "Is it? I thought it was mediocre."

A western man has had a needle taken out of his body. He now knows how to account for the stitches in his side.

"Yes," said Fogg, "as a success I have always been a failure, but as a failure I have always been an unequalled success."

An economist has sagely observed that no matter how large its population may become, there will be enough earth to go round.

A lady advertises for sale a baboon, three tabby cats, and a parrot. She states that, being now married, she has no use for them.

Minister—"I wish I could do something with the choir to stop that constant chewing of gum. It's detestable."

"No, it isn't," its spruce."

"It's all very well," said the grave digger, "to advise a young man to begin at the bottom and work up, but in my business it isn't practicable."

In the bright lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail, but later on, when the youth gets into business for himself then the word shows up in good shape.

A Kentucky negro threw a lump of earth at a mocking-bird and knocked a mule stone dead. If he had thrown at the mule he would probably have knocked a barn over.

Prof. Baird says that fishes sometimes live to be 150 years old. Now, we can understand why they are in no hurry to partake of the tempting morsel at the end of our line.

Acrobats report that business is jumping.

A horrible and probably fatal accident occurred at Philipsburg on Thursday. Little Johnnie Wise is a son of Geo. Wise, groceryman, of that place.

The lad has been lame for some time, one leg we believe being shorter than the other, the result of white swelling with which he was afflicted. He was driving a team of horses which frightened and ran. Johnnie attempted to leap from the wagon when his foot was caught and he was dragged along the street a distance of two blocks. When picked up, strange to say, he was not unconscious, but was able to tell those who came to his assistance that his lame leg was broken in two places. This proved to be true. His back and head were terribly bruised and he is now in a very critical condition.

How it will be Heated.

The Rutan-Smead system of heating adopted for the new school building is worthy the attention of those who are interested in such things. It claims to be based on scientific principles. It assumes that two things are necessary—1st warm air must be supplied in sufficient quantities; and, 2d, the cold air must be removed. The two large tubular air warmers are located in the cellar and are so planned as to collect a sufficient quantity of cold air, which is warmed (not heated red hot) and then rises and is diffused through the rooms; while the cold air, being heavier, falls to the floor and escapes at or near the floor, and is collected into the foul air shaft, and escapes into the outer air.

In a room thus ventilated the air cannot be impure, because the carbonic acid exhaled from the lungs, being heavier, falls to the lower part of the room and escapes, while pure air from without takes its place. All the air changes in a half hour's time. Actual experience shows that there is not a difference of more than 5 degrees between the temperature at the ceiling and at the floor.

This system keeps the purest and warmest air at the top of the room and the coldest and most impure air always at the bottom. It is said to cost less than any other system of heating.

Eagleville Paragraphs.

The Misses Kunes have returned from Lewisburg where they have been since commencement, and report having a lovely time.

On the 6th inst., during a thunder storm, our school house was struck by lightning on the east end, severing many of the weather boards from the building. School was in session at the time, and it is remarkable that no one was hurt.

The Disciple church and Sabbath-school held a picnic and festival on the 2d of July for the purpose of erecting a belfry on their commodious church. They realized quite a handsome sum for their labors.

Mr. W. I. Harter has improved our town somewhat by laying a plank walk in front of his residence.

Mr. S. T. Brooks, an enterprising young man, was here soliciting subscriptions for your paper.

Snake stories are frequently told here, some parties alleging to have seen in their dreams bald-headed ones.

A festival will be held in Liberty Baptist church, Saturday evening, the 16th. Come one, come all. Proceeds for benefit of church.

—People who attended the M. E. picnic on Thursday bear testimony to the fact that Mr. Benjamin Hunter, the owner of the woods, exerted his utmost powers to render the visit pleasant to all concerned. It is the unanimous opinion that the grove constitutes a delightful picnic ground. There is an abundance of excellent water. Why not take steps to fit it up for that purpose? It is at an easy distance from Bellefonte. Mr. Hunter charges nothing for the use of it. Another advantage is in the fact that it is located along the line of the Buffalo Run Railroad, and the managers of that road manifest a disposition to be accommodating and obliging to all their patrons. The fare to and from the grounds was certainly remarkably cheap on this occasion.

—We regret to read the statement that Rt. Rev. M. A. DeWolfe Howe, Bishop of the Central Pennsylvania Diocese, Protestant Episcopal church, has announced his intention to retire from the active work of the bishopric, and hereafter he will be merely counsellor to Asst. Bishop Nelson Sommerville Rulison, who will perform the active work of the bishopric under the direction of Bishop Howe. The latter is now the oldest living member of the house of Bishops in America, and is fast approaching his 80th year. His administration as Bishop has always been very acceptable, and has resulted in the regular and healthful growth of the spiritual interests under his charge.

—John M. Ward, who is known here as "Monte," has resigned his position as captain of the New York base ball club. He will continue to play. He was popular as a captain, and resigned merely because he considered that he had filled the position a sufficiently long time.

"Buck" Ewing succeeds him. Johnny will soon begin the practice of law, for which he has prepared very thoroughly. We hope he will have the same success at the legal profession which attended him at base ball.

—Hon. J. C. P. Kennedy, a most highly esteemed and worthy citizen of Washington, D. C., was deliberately murdered in broad daylight a short distance from his office. Mr. Kennedy was the neighbor and personal friend of Attorney General Garland, of Mr. Corcoran and of the leading citizens of Washington. He was 75 years of age, of mild and kindly temperament, and of gentle deportment to every one. The crime was unprovoked and most despicable in every sense.

The Flames.

NEW YORK, July 16.—At 3 o'clock this morning the watchman in charge of the huge Metropolitan Storage Warehouse, 119 and 121 West Thirty-eight street, saw smoke issuing from the lower story of the building. It was packed with furniture, paintings, household goods and bric-a-brac, mostly belonging to wealthy families now out of town, and 3 alarms were sent in quick succession.

Several firemen were sent into the front of the burning warehouse with a line of hose. Suddenly the gases generated by the intense heat exploded with what firemen call a back draft. The noise was like the report of a great cannon. Six firemen were hurled into the street, and burned and bruised they lay on the stone pavements. Then their comrades bore them to places of safety and an ambulance was called. The ambulance surgeon applied immediate remedies to the wounded men, and then they were taken to the New York hospital. It was found that none of them were fatally hurt. The injured firemen were:

Patrick H. Brien, fireman of Engine Company No. 34, aged 25, married and living at 7 Oak street, concussion of spine.
James Delaney, aged 40, of Engine Company No. 2, married and living at 62 West Tenth street, lacerated scalp and burns of face and hands.

John Trainor, aged 42, married, living at 339 Willets avenue, superficial burns of face and hands.
Peter Vetter, Jr., foreman of Engine Company No. 26, married, living at 171 East Ninetieth street, superficial burns of face and hands.

Fireman Edward Curley, of Engine Company No. 26, aged 42, married, living at 158 Fifty-second street, superficial burns of face and hands.

John Douglass and John Conroy, of Engine Company No. 1, were slightly injured as compared with the rest. Fireman Breen was outside the building on a ladder with fireman Hanlon when the explosion occurred. Breen was injured, but Hanlon escaped with little damage.

The fire gained fearful headway, and the intense heat began to break the windows of the Normandie hotel, opposite the burning warehouse. The night watchman of the hotel rushed from room to room awakening such guests as had not been aroused by the heat and smoke. There were forty people, including many ladies, in the house, and they fled in a panic from their rooms. Women screamed, and men half clad rushed into the streets. The awnings of the hotel took fire, and it seemed for a time as if it would be consumed, but the flames on the house were extinguished, and it escaped with little injury.

In the meantime the fire had spread from the cellar to the garret of the big warehouse. The Casino on the north was threatened with destruction. The upper windows of the theatre were broken by the intense heat, but employees of the place lighted the gas and helped the firemen to keep the flames from eating into the theatre. Edward Aronson arrived on the scene, and this morning he said to a reporter that the theatre suffered comparatively no damage. He had stored in the warehouse about $1,000 worth of scenery, and it was a total loss.

The building was leased by Solon Winterbottom from the Goetz estate. Every possible precaution had been taken against fire. Three large fire alarms were placed in the building. Watchmen, clocks and the most recent inventions for the prevention of fire that could be secured were adopted. In the face of all this Mr. Winterbottom did not think it necessary insure anything in the place, so that his loss will be almost a total one. He places his loss at $100,000. Very little insurance was placed on the goods in the warehouse, and the loss on them will be fully $500,000.

The Heat.

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—This was the hottest and at the same time driest Sunday ever known here. Through the efforts of the Law and Order society, every saloon in the city was closed tight. Liquor stores, confectioneries, ice cream saloons, and soda water fountains were also closed and as a result the intense heat created more than the usual amount of suffering. For several hours to-day the thermometer registered 101° in the shade, the highest point reached for years. Six fatal cases of sunstroke and fully a score of prostrations were reported.

A number of sudden deaths also occurred which may be attributed to the torrid spell. This afternoon about 3 o'clock the dead bodies of William Carrigan and John Jennis were found in their rooms in John Dolan's tavern, on Grant street. The men were not addicted to excessive drinking, and the cause of their death is shrouded in mystery. Rumors of suicide and death from poisoning were in circulation, but there was no evidence to show that they had taken their own lives or had been victims of foul play. A thorough investigation will be made.

At the stockyards in Allegheny and the east end the suffering among the animals was very great, but the death rate was no larger than usual.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Just once only in forty years of heat has Philadelphia's record of yesterday been beaten. At half-past 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the thermometer at the Pennsylvania hospital showed 101½° in the shade. On July 8 of the centennial year, the same thermometer climbed a degree and a half higher. Humanity and animals suffered alike. Eleven cases of sunstroke are reported at the hospitals, four of which are fatal. Along the street car lines all over the town were cars thrown from the track, for the horses gave out in the sweltering heat and dropped in the tracks. The stables were full of sick animals and the mortality is expected to be very large.

With the single exception of July 8, 1876, to-day has been the hottest for over thirty years, the heat being greater than that of yesterday. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer registered 102° in the shade, being just one degree less than that of July 8, 1877, and one and a quarter degrees greater than yesterday. Up to a late hour to-night there have been about thirty cases of sunstroke reported, fourteen of which proved fatal. At 11 o'clock to-night the thermometer stands at 87 degrees.

Shot His Wife by Accident.

JACKSON, Tenn., July 17.—News of a deplorable shooting affair has just been received here from McMairy county. Thursday night G. S. Whitten, a respectable citizen, shot and almost instantly killed his wife. He had been to Bolivar, and returned home about dark and left his buggy at the gate and went in to supper. His wife finished eating and left the table. Ned Smith, colored, came in as Whitten picked up a pair of saddle bags and took out his navy six-shooter, which he pointed toward the front gate and fired. A scream was heard, and both men rushed toward the front gate. Whitten caught his wife as she was falling. She had been shot in the side and died without uttering a word. She had been to the buggy and Whitten thought he would fire off his pistol, not knowing she was there. The unfortunate event has cast a gloom over the entire community.

Fatal Explosion.

HAZLETON, July 16.—An accident occurred at a lumber yard near here to-day which resulted in Henry Schumaker being instantly killed, Henry Deihl being fatally injured and Superintendent Walk of the Lehigh Valley water company, and several workmen being seriously hurt. The men were employed blasting rock for a trench, and Schumaker was in the act of filling a hole with a charge of powder when it exploded with terrific force, blowing him about forty feet, breaking his skull in several places and mashing his face into an unrecognizable shape. He leaves a wife and three children.

Deihl's sight is completely lost, one of his eyes being torn from the socket. A special train with medical assistance was dispatched to the scene of the accident and the dead and injured were brought to this borough.

Heavy Storm in New York.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Towards noon to-day a terrible wind and rain storm set in lasting nearly one-half an hour, and was accompanied with vivid flashes of lightning and heavy thunder. Trees uprooted, window shutters and signs were wrenched from their fastenings and several pedestrians were injured. Telegraph and telephone wires were blown down. Along the river fronts and bay the storm raged with great fury. The police patrol boats steamed out into the bay and rescued many persons who were clinging to capized sail boats.

An Accident.

CARBONDALE, July 16.—While Mrs. John A. Logan, in company with Mrs. Henry Campbell, of this city, was out riding yesterday, the horse became frightened and backed the buggy over an embankment. Mrs. Logan, in attempting to jump out caught her foot in a wheel and was thrown under the horses feet, sustaining a severe scalp wound, and her left arm and side were badly bruised. A surgeon was immediately called, who pronounced the wound quite serious, but not necessarily dangerous.

An Altoona Man Drowned.

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—A skill containing two iron workers, named Leopold Oberacker and Max Schlien, capsized in the Allegheny river this afternoon and both men were drowned.

Lorenzo Krise, of Altoona, Pa., was sleeping on a raft in the Allegheny river this afternoon when some boys, who wished to play a practical joke on him, pushed him into the water and he was drowned. None of the boys were arrested.

Cooler in Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, July 18.—The maximum temperature was 95 degrees at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The mercury has been falling steadily since then, and at midnight the temperature was quite comfortable. Five more deaths from heat were reported this afternoon, making twenty-three to-day and thirty-eight within the past forty-eight hours. Among the fatal cases was Stephen Strung, a well-known soap manufacturer.

Murdered.

PORTLAND, Oregon, July 17.—Detectives just returned from the scene of the reported massacre of Chinese on Snake river report that there is every reason to believe the Chinese, whose bodies were found in the river, were murdered by their companions and not by the whites or Indians. There were two rival factions mining in the same locality.

McGlynn.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Despite the heat, Dr. McGlynn addressed a very large audience in this city this evening, under the auspices of the Anti-Poverty society, and was enthusiastically received. In the hall where he spoke the thermometer registered as high as 108 degrees.

The President's Vacation.

CASNOVIA, N. Y., July 18.—The President's and Mrs. Cleveland's reception in Casenovia is acknowledged by both as far beyond what they expected. During the two hours more than 4,000 persons shook hands with them. The throng included people of every degree and age. Every one received a firm shake of the hand from the president and a smile from Mrs. Cleveland. Before the doors were opened to the general public, Casenovia's leading citizens paid their respects to the president and his wife. They were followed by the members of the Knowlton Post, Grand Army of the Republic, in a body, who were very cordially received. As soon as the general public began to enter, a committee of the members of Knowlton post took charge of the proceedings inside the house.

Just before the reception began Mrs. Cleveland was presented with a solid oak box, silver-mounted, containing a tea cup and saucer, one of the breakfast set used by George Washington. The box was made from the wood of a white oak tree under which the first settler of Casenovia pitched his tent. The gift was from Miss Lizzie Murray Ledyard.

The President and Mrs. Cleveland and Secretary and Mrs. Fairchild dined with Mrs. Licklaen at 7:30 o'clock, and at 8:30 p. m. were driven to the Oryghena boat club house on the shore of the lakes, where they witnessed the pyrotechnic display and illuminations, which were on a grand scale and were thoroughly enjoyed by the presidential party. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland will spend the night at the house of S. T. Fairchild, father of the secretary. They will go by carriage in the morning to Fayetteville.

The Green Glass Workers.

SPECIAL TO THE ALTOONA TRIBUNE
HUNTINGDON, Pa., July 18.—The eastern division of the green glass blowers, No. 149, which has been in session here since last Monday, adjourned at 10 o'clock to-night. The wage list adopted for next season's blast will be the 60 cent list less ten per cent, which is seven per cent. above what was received last year from January 1 until June 30. The apprentice regulation is to be one apprentice for every fifteen journeymen, and only single furnaces having a fraction of three-fifths of fifteen will be allowed one apprentice. The furnace must be in operation five months prior to the 1st of July, 1888, to entitle them to any apprentices. The assembly did its utmost to establish harmony between the divided sections of the trade, but failed because of the expressed opposition on the part of the New Jersey blowers to the Knights of Labor. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Grand master workman John Coffey, of Philadelphia; worthy foreman, William Phalen, of Lockport, N. Y.; district recording secretary, William Longfellow, of Lockport, N. Y.; treasurer, Michael C. McMullin, of Clyde, N. Y.; executive board, John Coffey, chairman; Henry Kattenbach, of Royer's Ford, Pa.; Fred Garnett, of Montreal, Canada; Thomas Smart, of Ellenville, N. Y.; Patrick McCandell, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Little Blood Spilt.

UNIONTOWNS, Pa., July 18.—Bloodshed was indulged in at West Leisenring; no one was killed, but a Hungarian was battered over the head with the butt end of a rifle in the hands of a Pinkerton guard.

This morning the Huns exhibited a disposition to quarrel and threats were made against the men at work. About 7 o'clock a crowd of them approached the men and asked them to quit work, when they reached the Huns hurled rocks at them. The Pinkerton men at once fell into line and the Huns beat a retreat, with the exception of two or three. These stood on the public road and refused to go further. The officer raised his rifle and struck one of the Huns with the butt end on the head. He fell to the ground bleeding and was carried away by his companions.

An Awful Catastrophe.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 18.—Near Owen township, Indiana, last Saturday, a large force had been employed on a fruit farm gathering peaches. The principal orchard is situated on a high bluff over the river and a heavy car was rigged upon an inclined plane to convey the fruit to a boat below. This car was heavily loaded, and four men took a seat on it to assist in unloading it at the bottom. The car started, and when about quarter of the way down the ropes, which held it back, broke. The car being freed dashed down the hill at a terrific speed and striking the "bumper" at the bottom was dashed to pieces. One of the men jumped off and broke his neck, dying almost instantly. The other three were frightfully crushed and two have since died, the other being in a dangerous condition.

Great Fatality.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The sickle of the sun cut a wide swath in the population of Chicago last week and yesterday. It had its victims in every grade of society, and left them in every part of the city. The welcome breeze that sprang up last night saved many lives, but many sufferers are past all help, and the night and morning added to the death list. Twenty deaths from sun stroke were reported yesterday, and as many more this morning, and 263 babies, less than a year old, fell sick and died from the heat. There were about 135 deaths altogether reported up to noon, and only half the day over. The weather was muggy and the air heavy this morning, but the breeze was still blowing. Thermometers in various parts of the city ranged between 85 and 90°.

Vomiting Forth Lava.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—The schooner Dora, from Ounalska, which has arrived here, brings news that the volcano of Akoniac on the island of Akentan, one of the Aleutian group, is in a state of eruption. The natives state that eruptions have been almost constant since the middle of May. Loud explosions occur very frequently. A large quantity of rock is daily thrown up hundreds of feet into the air and at night numerous streams of lava can be seen coursing down the mountain sides, illuminating the whole country around. Earthquake shocks are also frequent.

A Town Saved from Destruction.

SPECIAL TO THE ALTOONA TRIBUNE
MILLERTOWN, Perry County, Pa., July 19.—Yesterday afternoon the large three-story hotel building on the corner of Centre square and Sunbury street, this place, owned by Henry Martin and occupied by M. H. Ward, was destroyed by fire. The cause of the conflagration was a spark from the fire in the cook stove, which stood on the porch and the pipe of which runs through a board roof. This latter took fire and in a brief time the building was a mass of seething flames. The bucket brigade failed to check the fire, although energetic work was done, and an appeal was sent to Harrisburg for aid. A steam engine and hose carriage was sent from that city on a special train. The firemen did good service in saving adjoining property.

The building was entirely consumed, only the blackened walls and a few charred timbers remaining. The property was valued at $4,000 on which there was an insurance of $1,000. Mr. Ward was fortunate in saving nearly all his furniture, but much of it was damaged. He estimates his loss at $200 on which there is no insurance. A large three-story brick building and store which stood next the hotel was damaged by fire and water to the extent of probably $250; partially insured. This property is owned by Perry Kremer and Louis Giffen and is occupied by Milton Brandt as a residence and Jacob Eshelman as a store and dwelling. Mr. Brandt's loss in damage and breakage is about $100, with no insurance. Mr. Eshelman thinks his loss in damage to store goods will not exceed $25 on which there is an insurance. The roof of the Odd Fellows' hall was also on fire, but was extinguished before any serious loss was sustained.

After the fire had been subdued the Harrisburg firemen put their apparatus on board the cars and afterward were taken to the Etzweiler house, where a substantial supper was furnished them at the expense of the citizens. This evening a public meeting will be held, at which it is expected that action will be taken authorizing the borough council to appropriate the sum of $100 to the brave firemen who came to the rescue of Millertown in the time of its distress and need.

Last night about 11 o'clock the barn on the farm of James G. Black, situated about four miles from this place in Oliver township, was totally destroyed by fire together with its contents, which consisted of about fifteen tons of hay and a grain drill. The loss will be about $500, and the insurance is $200 on the barn and $100 on contents. There was no person on the place at the time, the tenant having gone to help a neighbor move. The dwelling house was saturated with coal oil and fired, but the flames were extinguished. The burning of the barn was doubtless incendiary in its origin.

A Short Strike.

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Some time since the Philadelphia and Reading railroad officials issued an order that all their train employees should be subjected to an examination for color blindness and as to their ability to read and write, and in compliance therewith large numbers of men have already been examined, a few of whom have been found deficient and were either discharged or transferred to other departments. The coal handlers at Port Richmond, including the shovelers, coal train crews and all other branches of the coal service, feared that the order was intended to apply to them as well as to the passenger and freight crews, and rather than submit to an examination they held a meeting and resolved to strike.

At noon to-day, when the men, 1,100 in number, went to dinner they did not return, it was then learned that a strike had been quietly but successfully inaugurated. Steps were at once taken to confer with the company, and quite early in the afternoon a meeting was held at which the trouble was amicably settled, and all of the men will be at work as usual to-morrow morning. Just what the terms of settlement were is not known, although it is said by both sides that everything was satisfactorily arranged and existing troubles entirely settled.

It is understood that the men were given to understand that the order for examination would not apply to them, as their work did not involve the care of human life as in the case of passenger and freight crews. With this the men were satisfied and at once agreed to return to work. The strike was the result of a misunderstanding entirely, and not on account of the discharge of a few of those who failed to pass a satisfactory examination.

Storm in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, July 19.—The storm of yesterday, afternoon was followed by another of almost equal force about 3 o'clock this morning. Several houses on Cumberland street, near Gilmore, were struck by lightning and unroofed and their contents almost entirely destroyed by rain. Harlem Park, the most beautiful resort within the city, this morning, presents an appearance of desolation. Nearly all the trees are damaged and many of them entirely destroyed. Unroofed houses are to be seen all over the western section of the city, and the aggregate damage is heavy, although the individual losses are comparatively light. At the City Marine hospital, down the Patuxent river, the hall of yesterday afternoon broke all the windows on the south side, and the entire building was flooded. The rainfall for the 12 hours ended at 4 o'clock this morning was 1.1 inches.

During yesterday afternoon's storm Mrs. James Ent, wife of a farmer living in the upper part of Wicomico, and Dr. Wolverton, a visitor, were both killed instantly by a flash of lightning, which also stunned Mr. Ent, who was just entering the house to seek refuge from the storm. Information has also been received of the killing, near Cockeysville, of Charles Clark, who was driving a pair of horses. The flash that caused his death also killed both horses.

Where the Weather is Cold.

Boston, July 19.—A letter was received from the Gloucester schooner Annie McJordan, dated Dyreford, Iceland, May 29, in which it is said that the weather has been very bad with continuous gales and snow storms. Vessels there have been unable to fish. The crew was surrounded by heavy fields of ice and numerous icebergs, which made it very dangerous for vessels to anchor on the fishing grounds.

The schooner A. D. Story reports a high time from April 21 to 23. It was from zero to 15 degrees below. Some of the crew were frost-bitten. During a heavy gale with snow, while at anchor, small icebergs came down on the Story and crushed the bow. The vessel was badly lacerated and lost the flying jibboom. Captain Ryan stood with a hatchet to cut the cable to save the vessel if necessary.

It was a basket picnic, and in the evening a supper was served, the receipts from which were $133, of which between $80 and $70 will be net profit. Addresses were made by Mr. R. A. Cassidy and Wilbur F. Reeder and W. E. Gray, Esqs. All speeches attracted great interest and were listened to with close attention. Lieut. Francis Stevenson, for whom the camp was named, was a brave man. He fell, mortally wounded, at Chancellorsville. His son, G. W. Stevenson, is a member of the camp.

CAPE MAY.

IMPRESSIONS OF A BELLEFONTER NOW SOJOURNING BY THE SEA.
Special Correspondence of DAILY NEWS.

Returning to Cape May, after an absence of a few years, I see much that interests me more than ever before.

The ocean seems more grand and of a deeper blue, by increase of years. The balmy air, the invigorating sea breeze, the health-imparting bath, and the delightful stroll along the sea-strand pavement all promise the health-seeker a new lease for his life.

Many old landmarks and familiar faces have passed away, and new ones have taken their places.

The large iron pier with its protective verandas, reaching out into the deep; the shore-line railroad extending to Sewell's Point; the new Government House, with its life-saving apparatus, so complete in its appliances for efficient service in rescuing the ship-wrecked mariner—these and others are as new leases in the life of this sea girt city. I had not seen them before. They add much to the interest, comfort and health of its visitors.

It occurs to me that a steamer might be constructed large enough to bridge the Delaware bay, connecting the land on either side, and thus offering a more direct route for southern travel to this summer resort.

God's three majestic finger points are the prairie, the mountain and the ocean, but the latter seems most sublime of all.

As in the evening hour you gaze out upon the boundless expanse arched with the star-spangled sky, the beauty and grandeur of the scene surpass all description; and one is impressed with the thought of the near presence of the overruling Divinity, whose paths are in the great waters and whose footsteps are not known.

A Call to Prayer.

August 4 will be a most important day in the history of the temperance reform, for on that day the legal voters of Texas will decide the question now pending, the adoption of a Prohibitory Amendment to the state constitution.

There are many reasons why we should lend them all the help possible between now and election, and there are many obstacles in the way of doing what it is in our hearts to do. The season of the year and the consequent hot weather deters many from going to their assistance who otherwise would; our unions are, in many places, about taking a vacation and officers and members are seeking rest in the mountains or "down by the sea."

We can, however, give our prayers, and we earnestly ask unions and churches to unite on Sunday, July 31, making this day a day of prayer for the triumph of our cause and the cause of humanity in the Lone Star state.

We urge local unions to bring this request to the attention of pastors of the churches in their respective localities, and ask them to devote the morning service to a sermon on temperance, and the evening to a union meeting of the churches and the local W. C. T. U., this latter to be given to prayer for the success of the Texas election on the following Thursday.

This is the first time the North has been called upon to join with the South in prayer for a Southern state, and shall we not make it a day long to be remembered by all true hearts, both North and South?

Yours for the new emancipation,
FRANCIS E. WILLARD,
Pres. Nat. W. C. T. U.

Grateful Guards.

CAMP REAMER, July 14, 1887.

The Bellefonte Guards take this method of returning their sincere thanks to the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania for the use of the camp equipage kindly loaned to them for the purposes of their camp at Cherry Run; to W. H. Reamer, Esq., conductor on the Penna. R. R., for the many valuable favors shown them by him, and to the parents and friends of the members of the Guards who by their assistance contributed to the success of the camp, and many of whom, by their presence, attested their kindly feelings toward us.

On behalf of the Guards,
HUGH BEAVER, Captain.

—On Thursday night the people of Milesburg were aroused from their slumbers by the low rumbling sound of an earthquake shock. Several houses were shaken, crockery and glassware rattled and one stove pipe tumbled down. The stove pipe will not be replaced until next September. The night was warm and this, added to the terror caused by the quake, sent the mercury up to 110° in the shade. Some surprise is evinced because the shock was felt so sensitively there, but is not reported elsewhere. However, that's quite near enough to Bellefonte.

—Two boys were drowned in Moshannon creek, at Boynton, Clearfield Co., on Thursday afternoon, while bathing in that stream. The boys had a spring board erected on the bank, from which they were in the habit of jumping into the water. The two boys made their dive head-foremost, and it is presumed struck the bottom of the stream with such force as to produce concussion of the brain, as neither of them arose after they made their fatal plunge. Their bodies were afterward recovered.

—A great deal of water was used on the streets, lawns, etc., on Saturday evening—very much more than was necessary. Some places it was almost impossible to cross the streets because water and mud were so deep, caused by the quantity of water thrown on the streets. Another and yet more disagreeable effect was that the water in the reservoir was so low that after 9 o'clock there was none in the higher parts of town, and people were compelled to retire thirsty to bed.

Harvest Time.

Again this community is being favored with a bounteous harvest. In all directions wide-spreading fields contain the growth of the summer—yellow, ripe and beautiful. The trees are laden with fruit, fast growing and taking on a rich glow of color. The sun and occasional showers are accomplishing these results. Feelings of gratitude should possess us, as we realize that these gifts never fail.

Ripe Peaches.

Centre county beats the South in peaches. Mr. Isaac Haupt brought a fine collection of ripe peaches from his farm on Monday. The fruit is equal to the best that is brought to Bellefonte at any time, and to know that they grew and ripened in this county this season is surprising. He sold them to Signor Italiani, on the Diamond, at the rate of $1 per peck.

Gratifying Growth.

The borough is growing more rapidly this summer than at any previous period in its history. One has only to go to the higher parts of the town and look north, east, south and west to see houses springing up, in all stages of advancement. All of them will be completed before cold weather, and will be occupied generally by strangers who will come to our town.

—Last year Mrs. Shuey, of near Shiloh church in College township, raised a fine crop of sweet pumpkins in her garden. Among them was one which is still in her possession and is in an excellent state of preservation. Miss Angeline McBride, who is a valued subscriber to the Bellefonte Republican, furnishes this item.

—The young men interested in base ball, having secured permanent grounds, the sport is expected to take a boom. It is too late for it this season, but next year it will begin early. The fact of being near Collins' furnace, where there will be an increasing population, will add to the interest taken in it.

—Mrs. Mary Ann Laporte, wife of Hon. John Laporte, died at her home in Franklinville, Huntingdon county, on Monday morning. She was in her 75th year. Two brothers, Jacob and Benjamin Jones, and her oldest son, Jones Laporte, are residents of Philipsburg, this county.

—Col. John T. Mathias died at Westminster, Md., last week, aged 73. At one time he was a member of the iron firm of William M. Lyon & Co., and was for many years general manager of the firm's interests at Tyrone Forge and Bald Eagle furnace.

Runaways, Accidents, Etc., at Spring Mills.

We had three runaways the past week. Mr. E. Royer's horse got away from him as he was leading the animal from the stable. Very fortunately, Robt. Hettinger caught the horse in front of his house in Georges Valley.

Mr. Archey Allison, of Nittany Valley, was put to inconvenience by a runaway. He was in Spring Mills visiting his daughter, Mrs. Yony Condo. The horse frightened and started on a run, going all the way home. Dr. Allison, his son, found the horse next day and brought it back to Spring Mills. A Finkle, of Georges Valley, also had a runaway. No one was injured in these runaways.

Mr. Runkle, who was harvesting for John Bears, about three miles north-west of Spring Mills, met with an accident. While handling a cradle, quite carelessly, he was cut in the shoulder, inflicting a wound about four inches long. Dr. Allison gave him the necessary surgical attention.

Lewis Hassinger, formerly of Spring Mills and now at Paddy's Intersection, while at work with the circular saw, had his hand taken off about the middle of the metacarpal bones. His sufferings were very great. It is said that he carries an accident insurance policy, which will be very convenient under the circumstances.

School opened on Monday.

The laying of the corner stone of the Methodist church building, last Sunday, was an impressive service, and more than $100 was collected towards the erection of the edifice. The ministers present were Rev. Leidy, Presiding Elder, who conducted the service; Rev. James Wilson, D. D., of New York city, Rev. Heckman, Prof. D. M. Wolf and Rev. Crockett, of near Lock Haven. Among the articles placed in the stone were a copy of the Christian Advocate and Altoona Tribune, a list of names of the members of the church, a list of the ministers present and the name of the minister on this charge. Do.

—In connection with the partial failure of the wheat crop in this county, this season, a fact of great interest is noticed. In Ferguson township, from a central line, westward, including all that portion where there is a Republican majority, the crop is in excellent condition. From the same line, eastward (the Democratic portion) it is almost a total failure. Just why Dame Nature so favors the Republicans may not be apparent to all, but it is certain that if the fly will not attack the wheat fields of Republicans, it is the duty of every man to vote for the Republican nominees this fall, and thus insure a splendid crop next season.

Letter List.

Following is a complete list of the letters remaining uncalled for in the post-office at Bellefonte, Centre county, Penna., July 18, 1887:

W. M. Clark, Miss Della Emerick, Elmer Hackman, J. A. Jones & Co., John A. Johnson, Mrs. Chas. Miller, Miss Maggie Miller, Mrs. Roseman, G. W. Stover, Miss Anna Scott, George Teats-2, Miss Mary Williams.

Persons inquiring for letters named in the above list will please say advertised.

JAS. H. DOBBS, P. M.

Religious Notice.

Rev. M. B. Laning will fill his regular appointments next Sabbath (July 24) as follows:

Unionville, 10.30 a. m., followed by the Lord's Supper.

Port Matilda, 3.30 p. m., Martha Furnace 8 a. m.

Monthly church conference at Unionville, Saturday, July 23d at 2.30 p. m. All members of the church are earnestly requested to be present.

James Gordon Killed.

The sad news comes that James D. Gordon, of this place, was struck by the day express at Wilmerdine, or Hillsboro, near Johnstown, and instantly killed.

The young man went away from this place to Johnstown several months ago, to join a surveying corps. His widowed mother and numerous other relatives reside here.

—Thomas Goyer, the son of Rev. Geo. Goyer, of Tyrone, while in his line of duty as passenger conductor on the Lake Shore railroad on last Saturday, was overcome by the heat and, falling from his train at Erie, Pa., was instantly killed. He was buried on Monday by the Grand Army Post at that place.

—The school board met on Tuesday evening and elected Miss Rosie Fox, daughter of Mr. Joseph Fox, a teacher, to take the position left vacant by the resignation of Miss Lizzie Laning. Miss Rosie is a bright young lady and is a graduate of Bellefonte's famous high school.

—The regular monthly conference of the Milesburg Baptist church will be held in their lecture room on Saturday, July 23d, at 2.30 p. m. Delegates to the Centre Baptist Association will then be elected and other business relating to the Association transacted.

—Lewis Hassinger was unfortunate at Poe Mills, on Wednesday morning, says the Centre Reporter. While at work on the saw mill, a board getting fast threw his right hand on the saw and cut off the entire hand. Frank Bradford, the R. R. agent, at once telegraphed to Millheim for medical aid, which was brought down on a hand car, and the arm dressed.

—The Central Committee of the Huntingdon County Centennial Association held a meeting on Friday night of last week and sub-committees on illumination, decoration, relics, heirlooms, industrial displays, mineral exhibits and educational exhibits were appointed. The centennial will take place September 20 to 24. Hon. Wm. A. Wallace, a native of Huntingdon county, will probably be selected to deliver the oration. There will be a balloon ascension on September 20, firemen's parade on the 21st and the Grangers will have an industrial display on the 22d. The military and civic societies will also parade.

—The large mansion house at Axeman, formerly owned by the late Mrs. Mann, and now owned by Mr. Daniel Garman, is at present occupied by two families. On Saturday night it caught fire, but the flames were quickly extinguished and serious damage averted. It is fortunate the flames were discovered in time.

Heroes and Heroines.

There are few who endure bodily troubles without complaint. Did you ever meet among the heroes or heroines of your acquaintance—if any such there have been—one with a yellowish cast of countenance and that jaundiced aspect generally, which the most unpractised eye recognizes as the product of a disordered liver, who did not complain, and peevishly too, of the soreness of the recalcitrant organ, of pains beneath the right shoulder blade, of dyspeptic symptoms, constipation and headache? Of course you never did, and of course the individual was not using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, or he would not so have looked—so have complained. To purify the blood when contaminated with bile, and conduct the secretion into its proper channel, to re-establish regularity of the bowels, banish bilious headache and remove impediments to complete digestion, nothing can approach in efficacy this peerless alternative and tonic. Malarial complaints, always involving the kidney and liver and bladder inactivity, are remedied by it. It is a capital appetizer.

—Just how high the mercury climbed on Sunday seems to be uncertain. We understand that Col. Wilkinson, who took a walk down the railroad sometime during the day, states that he found a place where it was about 200 degrees. Since this report was received all others who tried to count the degrees have given up in disgust.

Saved My Child's Life.

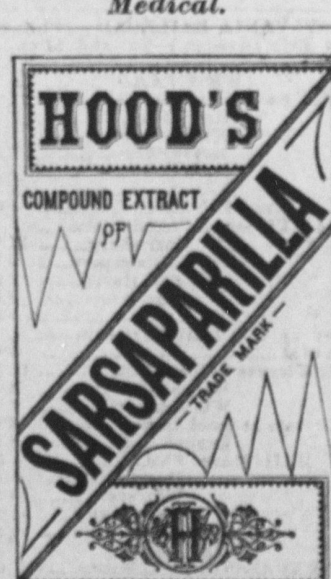

J. S. Weaver, Secretary Iron Steamboat Company, New York, says: I wish to say to the Public that I had a child about four years of age, lying at the point of death with summer complaint, (diarrhoea) the doctor and all of us having given up hope. The doctor, however, advised us to get some of Speer's Port Wine, and give her a little at a time—very little, but often. As a last resort we did so, and I say that Speer's Port Wine saved her life. She is my only child. I had never seen Mr. Speer, but with tears of joy, I went and told him that his wine had saved the life of my only child.

—Honors once won will cling to a man forever. The Lock Haven Daily Democrat continues to refer to Lawrence L. Brown as "President of the Council." When Mr. Brown was the President he became quite famous for his executive ability, and his concluding report was equal to the message of the President of the United States.

A Harlem lady has become so accustomed to watering her flowers that she was out with her watering pot in the rain recently, sheltered by an umbrella.

The greatest deficiency of Southern colleges is their lack of facilities for physical development. They turn out too many dyspeptic geniuses.

Medical.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to take any other instead, it is a peculiar medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boech's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, Severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 7-cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in the United States and Canada.

Southern Antidote for Malaria.

It is generally known that Simmons' Liver Regulator is relied upon to secure immunity from all malarial disorders. This is proven by its popularity, and anyone who has lived in the South has seen its curative effects and the protection it gives against this weakening and dangerous malady. It acts more promptly than calomel or quinine, without any of their injurious consequences.

OLD and reliable Medicines are the best.

Adward Atkinson once said that he would ask no better epitaph than this: "He taught the American people how to stew." The American people can stew, bake and roast this weather without any instructions from Mr. Atkinson.

The city of St. Paul was visited on Wednesday night by countless swarms of what are called "day bugs," which swarmed around the gas lamps and electric lights, and covered buildings and the ground. In one place they covered the pavement to the depth of over a foot.

'At The Weeds'
HOLLAND PATENT, N. Y., July 12.—President Cleveland and wife arrived here at 5.40 o'clock this morning, an hour and six minutes earlier than they were expected. They came from Utica by special train composed of one coach and a New York Central hotel car. Only Mrs. Cleveland's maid accompanied them. They walked from the station to "The Weeds," the residence of Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, where they were heartily received by the president's sister and his niece, Miss Mary L. Hastings, of Clinton. The early arrival was a pleasant little surprise, but Miss Cleveland was all ready for her guests. The people of this place had intended to be out en masse to greet and welcome the president and his wife upon their arrival, and it is a matter of general regret that such pleasure was not had.

Indeed, so well had the secret been kept that even Miss Rose Cleveland, whose guest the president was to be, did not know of his presence in the village, consequently there was no conveyance in waiting. Mrs. Cleveland was attired in a light traveling dress and carried a bouquet of roses. As she alighted she nodded pleasantly to the engineer and walked into the depot. The president, meanwhile having satisfied himself that no carriage was in attendance, picked up a small bundle, put it under his arm, and said: "Come on." Like good American citizens they walked slowly up the street of the village to "The Weeds," Miss Cleveland's residence, and the home-stand of the Cleveland family. Miss Cleveland met them at the door and breakfast was soon after served.

Promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon the people of the village began to wend their way to "The Weeds," where the President was holding a reception. Dairy Commissioner J. K. Brown presented the callers to Mr. Cleveland, who stood in the small parlor and said a pleasant word to each. Mrs. Cleveland did not appear. The reception closed at 4 o'clock. Upwards of 200 persons called and shook hands with Mr. Cleveland. Among the callers were many old friends of the family and scores with whom the President was also present from surrounding towns. All comers, friends, acquaintances and strangers received a hearty welcome. The distinguished visitors are enjoying their trip in the country.

The President's Trip.
CLINTON, N. Y., July 13.—This day one hundred years ago Moses Root and a small band of his followers settled in what is now the town of Clinton. If Moses could have looked in on the town to-day he would have been surprised. A crowd of from 2,000 to 3,000 people suddenly let down in a place of 3,000 inhabitants in its normal condition, houses festooned with flags of all nations, bunting and flowers, arches across the streets bearing appropriate inscriptions and other evidences of celebration, is what he would have seen, with the principal attraction of the president and his wife.

At 7.40 o'clock this morning Private Secretary Lamont and Postmaster Bailey, of Utica, left that city on a special boudoir car en route for Holland Patent, where they were to meet the president and party. The entire party, including President Cleveland, his wife, sister, and Miss Hastings, his niece; Colonel Lamont and E. Prentiss Bailey of Utica, arrived at Utica from Holland Patent at 9 o'clock. They were met by Professor Hoyt and a number of ladies and gentlemen of the centennial committee from Clinton. Professor Hoyt made a brief address of welcome, to which the president responded in a few words. The President and party arrived at Clinton at 10.15 o'clock. After reviewing the parade the President delivered a speech. He also spoke at a banquet in the evening.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 13.—President Cleveland will be the guest of Secretary Fairchild at Cazenovia on Monday and will spend Tuesday with his sister, Mrs. Hoyt, at Fayetteville, the citizens of which place will give him reception. The president leaves Cazenovia for Washington on Tuesday evening.

In Camp at Gettysburg.
GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 13.—Camp Vincent was quieter to-day than ever before. Many of the veterans went home, and by the time the camp closes on Friday it will be doubtful if more than a corporal's guard are present. The usual dress parade was dispensed with to-night and the band afterward rendered an open-air concert.

The officers elected at the reunion of the Eighty-third Pennsylvania in Wheeling are: President, Lieutenant Colonel G. C. Anderson; vice presidents, John Caldwell and J. B. Shroyer; secretary, A. B. Mann; treasurer, Eli Chambers. They will erect a monument on Wheatfield to mark their position and dedicate it July 2, 1888.

The Greatest for Years.
PORT HURON, Mich., July 13.—A most destructive fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the engine room of Cooley and Campbell's planing mill, corner of Walter and Fourth streets, and spread with frightful rapidity to their large lumber yard and sheds and from there to several small tenement houses belonging to the Harrington estate, on Pine street, and thence to W. R. Mulford's furniture factory, on Water street; also to a building occupied by R. Cae, builder, and then to Forrester & Vincent's grain elevator and a small adjacent tenement.

The fire department fought the flames bravely, often to their peril, as for some time it was feared the whole block would go in flames, and if the block, the heart of the city, would be in imminent danger. The wind gradually changed to their advantage, and with the hard work of the firemen, the flames were finally brought under control. The Farmers' elevator, owned by McMorran & Co. was so heated from the flames from the planing mill that it was expected to burst out in flames, but a slight shift of the wind saved it. Loss $55,000; insurance less than $10,000. One of the firemen fell from the effects of the heat and was medically cared for and sent to his home. The fire was the largest Port Huron has suffered from in years.

An Awful Accident.
ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 15.—A terrible accident occurred at the crossing of the Grand Trunk railway and Michigan Central railway in this city this afternoon. An excursion train on the Grand Trunk from Port Stanley ran into a passing freight train on the Michigan Central road with a number of cars loaded with oil attached. The engine crashed into one of these cars, when the oil instantly took fire and burned with great fierceness, communicating to the cars on both trains and extending to Griffin's warehouse, coal and lime sheds adjoining the track on the west and to John Campbell's dwelling on the east, all of which were burned to the ground, with the contents. Engineer Donnelly, of the excursion train, was buried in the wreck. The fireman jumped and escaped with slight injuries.

The forward car of the excursion train was filled with passengers, who made desperate efforts to escape from the burning car, but notwithstanding hundreds of brave and willing hands were immediately at work to assist in their rescue, it is feared that a number of lives were lost, and that the bodies will be burned beyond recognition before they can be got out of the wreck. At 8 o'clock, when thousands of people were crowding around the burning pile, one of the oil tanks on the cars suddenly exploded, throwing hundreds to the ground with great force and scattering the blazing oil in all directions, and severely, perhaps fatally, burning many. Nine bodies have already been recovered, burned to a crisp.

It is almost impossible to ascertain with any certainty the name of those lost in the wreck until the arrival of the late train from Port Stanley. There are many conflicting rumors, but it seems almost certain that Engineer Donnelly, Mr. Zealand, clerk in a dry goods store at Zealand's; the wife and child of James Smithers, dry goods merchant, were killed. Mrs. Zealand was got out badly burned.

Among those injured by the explosion are: Herman Ponsford, feared fatally; Nelson Gadsby, burned on the head; W. H. Joyce, engineer Grand Trunk railroad, badly burned on both arms; W. H. Walburn, chief of fire department, burned on hands and back; Richard Woodruff, back and neck; Oliver Norsworthy, neck and back; Archie Norsworthy, neck and arms; a son of Potts, master mechanic, burned on neck, and scores of others who have sought or were taken to their homes before their names could be learned. Gangs of men are hard at work removing the debris and it is expected the track will be cleared by daylight. All telegraph wires were burned with several poles, thus interrupting communication.

The Fire Record.
ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 15.—The Lawrence cement works at Eddyville were burned this morning. Loss, $140,000; insurance, $81,000.

MOBILE, Ala., July 15.—Fire this morning destroyed part of the old Matthews cotton press. The wife of Charles Smith, watchman, living up stairs was burned to death.

MONTREAL, July 15.—The St. Lawrence sugar refinery was totally destroyed by fire early this morning. One man was killed and two others fatally injured by jumping from the window.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Fire at the brewery of the Louis Bergdoll company on Twenty-ninth street, near Girard avenue, this morning, caused a loss estimated at $115,000 on the building and contents. The insurance, it is believed, will fully cover the loss.

LEWISTOWN, Me., July 15.—Fire broke out at 11 o'clock to-day in the New England shipbuilding company's yard at Bath, and threatened the destruction of the entire property. The mayor telegraphed for aid to Portland and Brunswick, but it is probable that the Bath department will be able to conquer the flames before the arrival of help. The loss will reach over $100,000.

An Awful Storm.
NOGALES, Ariz., July 14.—One of the most severe storms ever seen here came up yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock. It appears that there was a cloud burst on the mountain southwest of the town in Sonora, and within the space of half an hour the town was almost flooded. On the west side of the town in a large arroyo, and in a few minutes that spread to the width of more than 200 feet. Most of the damage was done in Nogales. In Sonora there were five houses washed away and one child drowned. One woman and two children were swept into the current, but were saved.

One peculiar feature of the flood was the action of a little Mexican boy, aged about 12 years. When his mother's house was swept away he attempted to hold a trunk and was taken down with the current; although the current was swift and appalling, he held on. After the storm subsided a large party went out and found him alive, five miles from his home, who hastened to the woman and two children being carried away by the flood, bravely plunged into the water and succeeded in rescuing them. So far as could be learned, there was but one person drowned, the Mexican child mentioned.

PARIS, July 15.—The celebration which began yesterday in commemoration of the Bastille was continued until this morning. The fete was observed in an orderly manner. The newspapers highly complimented the people for the good sense shown in refraining from every thing of a disturbing nature. There were a few isolated manifestations, but they were of no political importance.

LONDON, July 15.—In the house of commons to-night Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, reported that the Egyptian convention had not been ratified by Turkey and that Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, special envoy, having the matter in charge would leave Constantinople to-night.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—The steamer Australia, from Honolulu July 5, which arrived here to-day, brought Hawaiian intelligence to that date. No further outbreaks or demonstrations of any character occurred after June 30 and July 1, which resulted in the overthrow of the Gibson ministry.

LONDON, July 13.—The queen seems to be rather feeble. She sat for an hour on the terrace at the Hatfield house this morning and then took a short promenade, leaning on a stick. During the afternoon her majesty had quite a long conversation with the Count de Paris.

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—Judge Noonan to-day decided that playing base ball was not a violation of the Sunday law, and President Vonder Ahe, of the St. Louis Browns, was discharged. A game will be played in this city on Sunday by the American association as heretofore.

LONDON, July 15.—The crimes bill passed second reading in the committee in the house of lords to-night without amendment. It will be read a third time on Monday.

LOUISVILLE, July 13.—At a fire in a Methodist church at Bowling Green, Ky., to-day, Fireman William Lyle was killed by a big bell falling on his head.

PITTSBURGH, July 13.—Henry Price, a 17-year-old boy residing at Chartiers, Pa., this morning accidentally shot dead his 12-year-old brother Michael.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Colonel Richard Rowett, a well-known turfman, dropped dead at the Washington park race track to-day.

Sentenced.
NEW YORK, July 14.—Jacob Sharp, the notorious bribe offerer, was sentenced to-day.

"The legislature does not allow us to go below the minimum penalty in such a grave offense as the present is," said Judge Barrett. "All cannot be satisfied; those who clamor for the prisoner's receiving the full penalty of the law and those calling for a reprimand. All things have been considered and the judgment of this court is that the prisoner be confined four years at hard labor and that he pay a fine of $5,000."

An attempt at applause was made in one corner of the court as the sentence was pronounced, but it was suppressed quickly.

A stay of proceedings was granted on affidavits by Sharp's counsel that they needed more time to prepare a bill of exceptions, and that Judge Barrett had said that he was too ill to give the matter of a stay his attention.

A notice of appeal to the court of appeals in case of John O'Neill, one of the convicted Aldermen in Sing Sing, was filed to-day.

The Presidential Party.
FOREST PORT, N. Y., July 14.—The presidential party was greeted at the depot by Dr. Brower, and Rev. and Mrs. Cleveland and was driven rapidly from Alder creek station over three miles of sandy road to this village. After dinner both the president and Mrs. Cleveland appeared on the veranda of the parson-

TWO GREAT PICNICS.

THE METHODISTS AND THEIR FRIENDS GO TO HUNTER'S WOODS—AN ENJOYABLE PRIVATE PICNIC.

On Thursday Bellefonte seemed desolated, quiet and deserted. The reason was that at least 900 of the liveliest of our population were making the woods ring with their unrestrained joy and merry laughter. The peace and prosperity of the town depends upon our continual presence in it, so we placed our hand upon the palpitating longings of our heart and concluded not to go to both picnics at once. Fortunately, our excellent friend, "Lawyer Nibbs," went to the Methodist picnic at Hunter's woods and most obligingly supplies us with a characteristic account of the day's pleasures as follows:

"About 7 o'clock Thursday morning you could easily tell that there was something of more than usual interest about to transpire, because most of the young people were attired in their picnic suits and a few minutes later, and then on until after 9 o'clock,—they could be seen wending their way toward the Glass Works (where the B. and E. R. R. station is located). The train was composed of one passenger car, one baggage car and two open freight cars with seats along the sides. These were soon filled, and about as many more were waiting to go, among whom were Willie Shupp and his funnel gang. Well, when that train pulled out and 'sweet William' saw that he had to lay over for the next one, the gang looked 'kinder sad' for most of the pretty girls were on the first train. But they loafed around there and put in the time as good as they could. But,—oh, by the way—I must not forget to state that the Zion band (which also had to wait for the second train) helped feeble old Time to pass away by rendering their favorite music. I am not able to state whether the first train reached its destination without harrowing accidents or not, but I can state definitely that the second one did. But there was a great collision both on the inside and the outside of the train. The train ran on the track clear up to the grounds and by so doing killed a mosquito, a poor 'leedle peepie chick-in' and an old goose. On the inside, Conductor John Laurie, alias Pat Leathwhite, was having a racket with some poor little boys who had not tickets and he just—well, we won't give him away. On arriving on the grounds, the first thing we spied was the folks eating dinner. Well, we stood around looking wistfully at the good things, and at last a kind lady opened her heart and baskets and murmured 'Sonny, come hither.' We 'comed' and then went through the crowd repeating the performance until we got so full that we had to sleep some of it off. But we got awake in time to see Robert McKnight drill the tattooed company composed of several of Bellefonte's spry young gentlemen. The band then 'struck up' one of the old familiar tunes and the tune stayed up during the rest of the day. The time was profitably and pleasantly passed by foot ball, base ball, social chat, Wild Irishman, swinging and promenading. But, speaking of promenading—as I said before—Will Shupp's gang took the cake. All the rest quit when they began, and Gold was so much struck with his mash that he lost his hat. Bennet could not leave his girl long enough for her to eat her dinner and they fed each other taffy. But Willie Shupp was the worst of them all. His best gal invited him to dinner and he ate the whole coconut cake and stuffed the plate in his pocket. After people had eaten their suppers they got on the train and returned home more than satisfied with the enjoyments of the day, and ready to retire early for a nap."

"LAWYER NIBBS."

The private picnic went to the Intersection. It so happened—by accident, not design—that all but one of the sixteen present were Lutherans, and we at first thought that it was a rival picnic to that of the Methodist. However, it was an entirely private affair in honor of some young ladies visiting in town. The picnic, throughout, was a grand success. When Paul Sternburg was aiding the ladies to cross the creek he was so unfortunate as to fall in the water and narrowly escaped drowning. He would have "floated down with the tide" had not John Musser and Lawyer Kline come to his rescue. The day was spent in conversation, games, promenading, etc. The refreshments were choice and abundant. The affair was rendered additionally enjoyable by the presence of three fair strangers—Miss Sigmund, of Salona, who is exceedingly vicious and entertaining; Miss Sallie Tyson, of Phillipsburg, and Miss Jennie Gerberich, of Lebanon. The first lady mentioned is the guest of the Misses Olevine, and the two last mentioned are visiting the Misses Gerberich. The party came home early in the evening.

—The Toledo Blade has conferred a favor on Republican politics by eliciting from all parts of the country the sentiment of the voters. It has requested votes from every State as to the favorite candidate for President and Vice President and also the second choice for the former office. Blaine has developed strength which his most ardent admirers never dreamed of. In every state he is the first choice—even in Ohio, where Sherman lives. In Maine there is no division of sentiment as to first choice. Blaine received every vote. Sherman is the second choice of a majority of Republicans. For Vice President Lincoln is the first choice by a decided majority. Depew, of New York State, ranking next.

THREE NEW RAILROADS.

ONE LINE TO RUN THROUGH CENTRE COUNTY—PART OF THE GARRETT SYSTEM.

On Tuesday, the 12th, a charter was granted for the Carbon, Schuylkill and Western Railroad, which will run through this county, touching Bellefonte, and a branch to Philipsburg. The length of the railroad, including branches, will be 325 miles. It will start at a point on the southern line of Carbon county; thence through Schuylkill, Northumberland, Snyder, Union, Mifflin, Centre, Huntingdon, Blair, Clearfield and Cambria counties, to its terminus near Blairsville, in Indiana county. There will be a branch to East Tyrone. The capital stock of the company is $20,000,000, of which George A. Simpson, of New York City, has a controlling share. The officers are: Jno. J. Summers, of Philadelphia, President; and Edwin F. McConoughy, Thomas T. Baltz, W. F. Hiron, Wm. A. Baker, H. C. Lincoln and E. G. Price, of Philadelphia, directors.

At the same time the Clearfield and Allegheny Railroad Company was chartered, with a capital stock of $8,000,000. Both of these roads are part of the Garrett system to run a continuous line from New York City to Pittsburgh. The Clearfield and Allegheny will be 125 miles long. It will run through Clearfield, Cambria, Indiana, Westmoreland and Allegheny counties, starting at a point near Gazzam Station on the Beech Creek railroad in Clearfield county. George A. Simpson, of New York, is a heavy stockholder and the officers are the same as those of the Carbon, Schuylkill and Western railroad.

Tuesday seems to have been a good day for railroads. We notice that the Clearfield and Dubois Railroad Company was chartered. It will run from Clearfield to Dubois, a distance of fifteen miles. Mr. John E. Dubois is the president. Capital, $150,000.

FINISHERS.

THE BEAUTIFUL NEW SCHOOL HOUSE READY FOR OCCUPANCY.

Our visit to the new school house on Thursday afternoon was well-timed. We found that the building was finished that afternoon, and although there is considerable to be done to improve its appearance Mr. Tate's contract is completed and the building will be handed over to the Board. He finished it within the time of contract.

At present the exterior of the building does not look particularly promising nor inviting. But inside a great and agreeable surprise awaits those who will enter. It is spacious, neat, cheerful and well-adapted to the purpose. The effect of cheerfulness is particularly marked and we can say that we felt quite exhilarated while looking at it.

Mr. C. P. Hilder, who has done the nice painting and finishing, was so good as to show us the building throughout from the garret to cellar and even some parts of the exterior. All the woodwork in the building is finished in white oak style, except the doors, which, for variety, are in white pine. The two outside doors are finished in darker colors and are exceedingly neat.

There are four large, airy, light school rooms on the first floor. Yes, they are light, even despite the fact that two full length sides of each room are covered with blackboard—the delight of all teachers. They can literally "do sums" a mile long or make grammatical diagrams of equal length without erasing the first part in order to complete it. In every room there is a water spigot, with a basin below and all the apparatus complete. Five windows light each room, the windows arranged in such a manner that the light comes from above at one side. There are two neat recitation rooms and a cloak room for each school. Means of egress from every room are abundant.

Upstairs there are three rooms, the front one for the High school being double the size of the others. An entirely new system of heating and ventilating the building has been adopted. It is known as the Rutan-Smead system. In the cellar there are two large and rather complicated furnaces which heat the pure air and send it into the school room. But the foul air is not permitted to remain in the building. Other apparatus is provided which is arranged along the floor and which conveys off all the foul air. Thus the building will be like a human being, breathing off any deleterious vapors or obnoxious gases which may enter. It keeps the air of the school room pure and should have a good effect on the pupils.

The roof is being painted and the lighting rods adjusted in position. There will be four pointers, tipped with gold, and the rod is arranged in such a way to make it absolutely safe.

Much is to be done yet to add to the appearance. The cellar beneath the building is not an unpleasant place, and it will be neatly cemented. The children can go into the cellar on days when the weather may be too bad for them to venture out. The outside of the structure should be painted and penciled.

And, then, the grounds that surround the building! We did not realize until Thursday what possibilities of beauty they present. They are large, reaching way to the road on the east and quite a distance toward the west. Along the front, terraces should be made. A noble old tree that rises to heaven at a point near the middle of the yard must, of course, be left uninjured. Some one suggests that, the yard being so large, there is space for the fitting up of a gymnasium for the benefit of both sexes, but that is a proposition so far in advance of present ideas that it must be broached with care.

All the furniture for the rooms has been ordered and can be shipped at a day's notice.

News Notes.

The illness of Judge Barrett on Wednesday necessitated the postponement of the sentence against Sharp, which was to have been given by him at that time.

A traveler who has just returned from what used to be Bavispe, 600 miles south of El Paso, Texas, telegraphs a vivid description of the ruin done by earthquake in that region. "There also exists the only active volcano in North America, which is now pouring forth fire and lava. The few people who were not destroyed by the earthquake are still living there, being too poor to move away."

Devoe, the Hackensack, N. J., weather prophet, gives the forecast of the weather in store for us the remainder of the month. It will be safe, as a rule, to expect weather directly opposite to what he predicts. To-morrow, the 15th, will be partly cloudy and pleasant; from the 17th to the 21st will be the hottest period of the month, with frequent thunder showers, culminating on the 22nd with a northwest breeze that will be greatly appreciated in the cities; 24th, 25th, and 26th, decidedly cool but pleasant; 27th and 28th, rising temperature, partly cloudy; 29th and 30th, warm and foggy; 31st, partly cloudy with thunder showers.

At the works of the new Wash Ore Mining Company a well is being bored. At the depth of 180 feet a crevice was struck and the sand borer was used on Tuesday. Judge of the surprise of the men when among the substances brought up were two live blue birds, which at once flew away. They were seen by several persons who attest to the truth of the story. Perhaps the crevice encountered is a cave and these birds are inhabitants of the underground regions. If any more strange creatures are resuscitated there we hope an investigation will be made.

A Case of Libelous and Malicious Prosecution.

The wide circle of relatives and friends of the Reverend S. T. Thompson, of Mifflin county, were greatly shocked and agrieved on learning recently that that gentleman had been placed under arrest for the alleged burning of a barn, on which there was no insurance and in which he had not the slightest interest. The defamation was upon an able and most worthy clergyman and that was grounds sufficient for the idle and malicious tale-bearers to convey far and wide, with ever-increasing assurances of guilt, the news of this good man's crime, which was taken up and circulated by disreputable newspapers. The case was called in preliminary hearing before an uninformed and simple-minded justice of the peace, and although there was no evidence of guilt, or even grounds for suspicion, this justice felt that he must commit Mr. Thompson to prison. He was, however, finally convinced, by the attorneys for the prosecution, that it was an offence for which bail could be accepted. James Milliken, Esq., of our county, being present, promptly entered bail, when the justice said that he hoped that no fault would be found with him because there was such a pressure on him.

The attorneys for Rev. Mr. Thompson, viz., the Hon. Andrew Reed and D. W. Woods, Esq., of Lewistown, then asked that Mr. Thompson be surrendered to the sheriff. This was accomplished, when, owing to the absence of Judge Bucher from his district and from the State, he was brought by writ of Habeas corpus before the eminent and distinguished justice of the Supreme Court, the Hon. James P. Sterrett, who upon a full hearing of all the witnesses that the prosecutors could procure and instruct, yesterday at Lewistown discharged Mr. Thompson and dismissed the case. Judge Sterrett, in handing down his opinion, said there was not evidence sufficient to justify the issuing of a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Thompson. But how can this great wrong to Mr. Thompson and his family be put right? We hope the busy-bodies who helped in the wrong will now set about to repair the outrage.

The Philadelphia Weekly News comes to us with a paragraph marked, with a request for a notice, to which we gladly comply. The paragraph conveys the information—which will doubtless be welcomed by all the members of the National Guard—that Charles E. Menamin, private Company H, First Regiment, National Guards of Pennsylvania, son of the late Robert S. Menamin, publisher of the Printer's Circular and Publishers' Gazette, has been granted permission by the Major General commanding to publish the official newspaper during the coming N. G. P. encampment at Mt. Gretna, Pa., August 6 to 13. It will be a three-column, four-page folio called The Reveille, and will contain the official orders for the day, score of the rifle practice, base ball and general news of interest to the State militia. Its circulation will be 5,000 copies, Sunday, August 7, and 3,000 copies daily thereafter. Price 5 cents per copy; 25 cents for the week. The paper is in able hands and will be well edited. We take exception only to the announcement of issuing it on Sunday, which will be not only unnecessary, but positively wrong. By the way, we always take exception to proceedings in military camps on Sunday; there should be no dress parade on that day. The men would be better soldiers if they were taught to obey the orders of the Great Commander of the Universe Who rested on the Sabbath day and told His creatures to keep it holy.

—Have you seen the plans for Mrs. D. G. Bush's new building on the site of the Arcade? They are graceful, beautiful and elegant. On both the High and Water street exposures the building is to be highly ornamental. The front is a surface of brick, brown stone and plate glass, arranged with beautiful symmetry and proportion. Seven store rooms will occupy the first floor. Six will be on High street, one on Water. The brilliant display windows which they will contain will render the front of the building on both streets an almost unbroken surface of glass—only broken at one place and that is where a wide entrance leads from the street to the second floor. Large double bay windows extending out and fitted up with handsome glass will be the distinguishing exterior feature of the second floor. There will be fifteen business offices in this part of the building. The third floor will contain apartments suitable for Lodge rooms. Over the main entrance a fine tower will extend above the roof. At one time we believed that the plan for this building contained an opera house, but Mrs. Bush informs us that they do not, though a plan for such a building further in the rear on the elevated space may be carried out.

P. A. Welsh, of Philadelphia, is the architect.

Following is a complete list of the letters remaining uncalled for in the post-office at Bellefonte, Centre county, Penn'a, July 11, 1887:

Persons inquiring for letters named in the above list will please advise.

JAS. H. DOBBS, P. M.

—Editor Kinsloe, of Lock Haven, says that the Bellefonte jail is a "dirty dingy, abominable place," an "outrage on decency and humanity," that it is "infested with rats, cock-roaches, bed-bugs, beetles, thousand-legs, etc.," and finally that the cells are "limited and ill-furnished." We are not authority on jail; perhaps Editor Kinsloe is. Naturally, we do not expect there to be as comfortable as one's home. But if the Bellefonte jail is not up to the average it should be made so.

—The Gaten club, of Unionville, and the Bennett Club, of the Intersection, played a game of base ball on Wednesday afternoon at Milesburg. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning, because the Bennett club were dissatisfied with Umpire Milford's decisions. Score 3 to 1 in favor of Gaten's nine. William Shupp, of the Gaten club, made a home run, the first ever made on those grounds.

—A boy whose name we did not learn had a leg broken while near the Messrs. Collins' furnace on Thursday. He was in a wagon which he supposed was locked. But the lock became loose, and the wagon started down the hill with him. In some way the boy, in trying to get out, got his leg mixed up with the tongue of the wagon, breaking the limb.

—Samuel T. Gray, a citizen of Half Moon valley, is very prominently mentioned for associate judge. He is an upright, honest gentleman, a staunch Republican and true to his convictions of right—just the man we need. The convention has excellent material from which to select and cannot make a mistake.

—It will be necessary to elect a teacher to fill the place made vacant by the election of Miss Lizzie Laning to a similar position in the Tyrone schools, and that duty will probably be attended to by the School Board at its next meeting.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION

TWO DELEGATES ELECTED TO THE STATE CONVENTION—OTHER BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

The delegates to the Republican county convention met in the Court House at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. County chairman Wilbur F. Reeder took charge of the convention and Will E. Gray, Esq., read the official call and also the roll of delegates as they had been reported to him.

Captain Austin Curtin was unanimously elected permanent chairman, and thanked the convention for the compliment. Mr. Reuben Pletcher, of Howard, and Dr. J. D. Geissinger, of Bellefonte, were elected secretaries, W. E. Gray, Esq., acting as reading clerk.

The convention at once proceeded to business by receiving nominations for delegates to the State Convention. The three gentlemen named were William P. Shoop, of Centre Hall; John P. Harris and Jno. B. Linn, Esq., of this place. A ballot resulted as follows:

Shoop 35
Harris 22
Linn 57

William P. Shoop and Jno. P. Harris, having received the highest number of votes, were declared elected.

Col. D. S. Keller offered the following resolution which was adopted by an almost unanimous vote:

Resolved, That the delegates this day elected be instructed to vote for and use all honorable means to secure the nomination of Hon. Henry W. Williams, of Tioga county, for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court.

The following resolution was offered and quite eloquently defended by C. P. Hewes, Esq., but it provoked opposition and was defeated by a vote of 27 to 24.

Resolved, That the delegates this day elected be instructed to vote for and use all honorable means to secure the nomination of Capt. Wm. B. Hart, of Montgomery county, for the office of State Treasurer.

Dr. Christ asked for information if the delegates of this convention could be continued as delegates to the convention to be held later in the season. County Chairman Reeder said that would be impossible as the voters might desire to send their delegates to the latter convention instructed for some candidate.

The convention adjourned after having been in session not longer than three-quarters of an hour.

The names of the delegates were:

A Good Opportunity.

Rev. J. O. Davis, rector of the Episcopal church, is about organizing a choir of boys, and, elsewhere in this paper makes an announcement that any boys who may desire to join this choir shall call at the Rectory, on Lamb street, any afternoon this week between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock. More than this, he promises to pay them. This, it seems to us, is a grand opportunity for boys not only to cultivate any musical talent they may have (and almost every boy has some), but also to engage in most creditable employment and earn a little spending money. Rev. Mr. Davis advertises for only ten, but we shall not be surprised if the Rectory is besieged by a hundred or more.

On Thursday morning, Detective Westbrook arrested a man named Thornton Bechtol, on suspicion that he was concerned in the attempted Hawn robbery about five weeks ago. Bechtol has but one arm, and has been employed as a watchman on the Pennsylvania railroad. Suspicion has rested on him for some time, and his arrest was deferred until sufficient evidence could be secured against him. It is now thought by the authorities that he was unquestionably connected with the crime. All three of the robbers are now in jail. George Auker, the young man who was shot by Galbraith, one of the robbers, is slowly sinking. Dropsy has set in and his body is much swollen. Galbraith, who was shot in the eye by Auker, has lost that member. He is suffering intensely.

DEATH'S DREAD STROKE.

THE SUDDEN DEATH OF JAMES D. GORDON ON TUESDAY.

The remains of the late James D. Gordon were brought to his home in this place on the train Tuesday evening. They lie at rest in his mother's residence on Curtin street, from whence the funeral will be held at 3.30 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon.

How extremely sad this home coming! What a shock of bitter woe and sorrow to his mother and his nearest kindred! It seems but yesterday that James D. Gordon departed to take a position in a surveying corps for the Pennsylvania R. R. Company. James was among Bellefonte's brightest, most highly valued young men. He was studious, conscientious and clever. Naturally, he was so conservative and careful that the idea of exposure to accident was the last one that would be entertained regarding him. An older brother, Theodore, passed away from earth only a few months ago, that event plunging the family in deep mourning. Consequently, the announcement of the sudden death of this beloved son and brother came with crushing force. A bright halo tinged the black storm cloud, for James D. Gordon was ready to pass the line which separates the life of time, vicissitudes and uncertainty from that of glory and immortality. He will be missed by friends, church and society; by all who listened to his sweet voice or took pleasure in his cheerful manners and bright conversation.

His headquarters were in Johnstown. At 8.30 o'clock he was with the corps in the vicinity of Hillsboro. There is a double track at that place and the day express coming along the men stepped from the track. But James stepped backward on the other track, along which, unnoticed by him, a freight train was coming from the opposite direction, it being hidden from view by a curve. He was struck by this train and knocked upon the other track, where the day express also struck him, killing him instantly. His fair, pleasant features are much marred and his body terribly bruised by the accident.

Another account we have heard (told by the two gentlemen who accompanied the remains here) is that he stepped from one track to avoid a westward bound train and the express train, running 40 miles per hour, struck him, hurling him a distance of seventy-five feet. A terrible blow on the head caused his death. Those who have seen him say that although his countenance is scarred it retains its natural expression, and in it is easily recognized the much-beloved James Gordon.

An old lady in town, says the Tyrone Herald, has a very fine flock of chickens which usually comes in for a great deal of attention from her. Since the warm weather has set in these chickens, that is the hen portion of the flock, have been manifesting an earnest desire to increase and multiply, and take advantage of every opportunity offered to seat themselves on a nest full of eggs. This the old lady does not want, and when she finds a hen thus engaged she seizes her by the back of the neck, puts her in a bucket which she sets under the hydrant and turns on the water. An operation of this character was gone through with on Thursday, and after Mrs. hen was given a thorough ducking she was dumped out of the bucket with the admonition, "Now go run around in the sun until you get dry and hereafter stay off those eggs." That the hen will have abundant time to get dry, and also that she will stay off the eggs there cannot be much doubt, for she was ducked not only outside but inside—in fact ducked a little too much—for the life was washed clean out of her and the setting of that chicken is at an end. Turn on the water.

The Accident at Pine Grove.

Another account of the death of Mr. Thomas at Pine Grove Mills, on Friday, which was announced in this paper on Saturday, is as follows: Emanuel Thomas was instantly killed by a tree falling upon him near Pine Grove Mills, this county, on Friday last. A number of men were cutting timber for Hayette & Co., when one tree was lodged and another was cut to throw it to the ground. It was too light to perform the desired object, and sliding along the tree fell to the ground, striking Mr. Thomas and killing him instantly.

While Governor Beaver and Mrs. Beaver were in Warren, Pa., the Governor was invited by a committee from the State Council of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, in session to visit their hall, and he accepted, addressing them briefly. On Tuesday afternoon the Governor left for Chautauqua.

AFTER FOUR WEEKS.

WHAT THE BOROUGH COUNCIL DID AT ITS LAST MEETING.

The meeting of the borough council on Monday evening was the first since the 20th of June. We believe every member was present.

The verbal communications were literally almost too numerous to mention. D. F. Fortney, Esq., was the first speaker and addressed the council with that directness and force for which he is notable. In behalf of the county commissioners, who are improving the county property in the rear of the jail, he requested that the borough give the proper grades and fix the stakes so that permanent gutters may be put in. This matter was referred to the Street committee. Mr. McClain also desires grade on the same street and said that the water pipes are laid beneath the boardwalk, which is a mistake.

Dr. A. W. Hafer asked for the grade on Reynolds' avenue; Mr. John Pacini made a request, and Dr. R. L. Dartt appeared to ask water privilege for people living in Bush's addition. The last mentioned request brought out a resolution, which was adopted, that the water pipes shall not be extended outside the borough limits.

The Bellefonte, Buffalo Run and Beech Creek Railroad submitted a proposal to take 3,000 gallons of water per day, and desires to know the price. The company will erect a stand pipe and will either make the water connections themselves or permit the borough to make them as shall be deemed most convenient. The Water committee were ordered to confer with the proper parties concerning it.

A written communication from residents of North High street was read. It requested a crossing from the property owned by H. Y. Stitzer to the next one above—owned by Thomas Meyers. Twenty families united in the request. The Street committee reported having erected a new bridge near Reynolds' mill. The sewers on Howard street have been repaired. A question was raised as to the width of Water street, near the building to be erected by Mrs. Bush, with a request that it be settled at once. The Street committee, borough engineer and borough solicitor will visit the place and their united counsel will determine the question for all time.

The Water committee reported that all the proposed extensions of pipe are completed with the exception of a few connections. The pump at the water-works, during several days past, has been operated 18 to 20 hours in each 24 and now it is in operation all the time.

The Market committee reported $17.50 receipts during the month.

On motion, it was decided to secure the services of Mr. George Weaver to collect the necessary data upon which to base the water tax for the current year. As soon as that information is at hand Sheriff D. Z. Kline and Wilbur F. Reeder, Esq., will apportion the tax levy.

On motion, the rate of taxation for the year was fixed at 15 mills—3 for street, 2 for borough and 10 for interest.

A Few Suggestions.

It has been suggested to us that there are several places along the Lewistown turnpike where a railing might avert a possible accident. The pike is kept in excellent condition and is much used. It affords a delightful drive and for this reason every effort will be made to add to its safety. It is gratifying to know that so few accidents occur there. Now it is suggested that if a railing is put near the big spring in the vicinity of Valentines dam and also a railing near the place where Dawsons used to reside an element of danger would be removed, as a horse, if frightened by the cars, could not "back" the conveyance over the bank.

Snow Shoe Methodism.

Children's Day proved a success on Snow Shoe circuit. Its collection and the public educational collection amounted to $16 against $14 last year. $12 the year before and not more than $1 in any year previous to 1885. The prospects are good for reaching the million line by collections only—a result that has failed in accomplishment, hitherto. Some of the good people of the circuit gave the pastor and his wife a complete surprise on the last anniversary of their marriage. After spending a few pleasant hours together, they left at the parsonage many substantial tokens of good will.

Our friend, Mr. Kephart, informs us that the ladies of the church and Sunday-school at Fillmore will hold one of their old-fashioned and enjoyable festivals next Saturday, the 23d, all day and evening. Last year they held one which was a grand success, hundreds of people going from here on the Buffalo Run train. The same railroad will carry passengers to Fillmore next Saturday at very low rates. We will make further announcements.

Pleasant Recreation.

There is perhaps as much recreation and pleasure in a day in the woods as in any other means of enjoyment, and this sort of diversion is more generally taken advantage of this Summer than we have known it to be before. People go, not only for a day, but for a week. They prefer it to an excursion to some popular summer resort. Almost daily we hear of large parties who are going to some pleasant place for this purpose.

Mr. Benjamin Hunter authorizes us to announce that any proper parties desiring to use his woods for picnics are perfectly welcome to them. He asks only one condition and that is that horses shall not be fastened to any of the young trees, which causes damage to them. This offer is a liberal one, and characteristic of Mr. Hunter, who is public spirited.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dix, of Dayton, Ohio, delighted numerous friends and relatives by arriving in town on Thursday morning. This is Mrs. Dix's first visit here since she left several months ago, just after changing her name from Miss Mary Gephart to her present one. A disastrous freight wreck occurred on the branch railroad, near Altoona, on Friday evening at 6 o'clock. Conductor Kephart's train, bound to Altoona, drawn by engine 130, R. A. McKnight, engineer, was running the curve near Nineteenth street and Margaret avenue, when a cow attempted to cross the track in front of the engine. The engine struck the cow, killing her. The locomotive left the track, six cars following, and about 200 feet of track was torn up. No one was injured.

It seems that out in Washington Territory women have been serving as jurors, but the Supreme Court decides that they have no right to do so. The test case was that of J. J. Harland, whom a jury, composed entirely of women, convicted of swindling, and he was sentenced to several years in the penitentiary. The case was sent back to the lower court and the prisoner was discharged.

Thy precious child, though out of sight,
Is now a little angel bright.
High up above the skies,
He's now where there is no more pain,
And he will never come back again,
To heal the broken ties.

You'll no more see his smiling face;
You'll no more feel his fond embrace—
He's passed o'er Jordan's strand,
You ne'er more shall greet him here,
But
